History in 500 Words.
A Giant Motor.
Why Have Battleships?
Crime's Loud Voice.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CALVIN COOLIDGE will write a 500-word history of this country, to be carved in big letters on a mountainside.

Mr. Coolidge, laconic, will say much in 500 words. And enough could be said in fewer words, for instance:

Europeans landed on the East coast of North America, killed off the Indians and drove out King George, not liking taxation without representation.

THEY established industrial feudalism in place of military feudalism, and many money kings in place of one English king. They fought among themselves once, North against South. Now, all united, they are building a great nation, great prosperity.

There is danger of their going abroad to receive directions from a world court, or a league of European nations, instead of continuing to rely upon themselves.

THE English are building a speed automobile described as "enormous, and terrifying in appearance." With an engine of 4,000 horsepower, it is expected to break the world's speed record of 231.36 miles an hour. In spite of its great length, 25 feet, the giant car, rising only three and a half feet above the ground, weighs only 11,000 pounds. It has two wide fins at the rear end, like those of a dirigible. Its 12 cylinders, cast in aluminum, are lined with very light metal.

THIS is all interesting, for it means engine improvements that will be utilized in airplane construction later. They are useless on the ground.

The thing that interests the average man is to get the kind of automobile that will get him where he wants to go and bring him back, and that every man should do, rather than admit that his time is worth nothing.

MacDONALD, intelligent British statesman, would abandon battleship building.

Our delegates to the naval conference do NOT want the battleship given up. But for their high character, you might think they had heard the siren voice of battleship and armorplate lobbyists.

BATTLESHIPS are out of date, mere targets for airplane bombs, profitable only to their makers, costing fifty to sixty million dollars each.

PERHAPS our delegates will hear from President Hoover, who is not out of date and knows that Britain's great battle fleet played no part in the last war, primitive aircraft and submarines making it useless.

What would modern planes and submarines do?

A man arrested in Chicago, accused of participating in the "St. Valentine's day massacre," was delighted to find that "only policemen" were after him.

Said he, "I am glad to see you. I thought some guys were going to take me for a ride sure."

IN Brooklyn, a dead body is picked up on the steps of a residence, probably thrown out of an automobile.

And that's that, as far as that criminal goes.

MORE interesting is the fact that the well-known gambler, Rothstein, whose murder puzzled New York's police, and baffled the district attorney, was probably killed by a man who will never be convicted, for the reason that he himself has since been murdered by Rothstein's friends.

Even our able corporations might learn something about efficient organization from our able criminals.

WILLIAM H. MULLINS, son of the late James Mullins, and like his father, among the most highly respected men in Ohio, gives to Salem a home for nurses. This gift, in memory of his mother, sets an excellent example to others that can afford to be generous Intelligent nursing is as important as the doctors' work, and nurses should be made comfortable.

Young Americans, wondering "if there is still chance," might study Mr. Mullins' start in business, on his own account. When very young, he saw a locomotive had been in a smash-up on the Fort Wayne road that he bought for its value as "scrap," set himself and two or three mechanics to work restored, and sold it for enough to start what became a big successful business

There are chances for those that have energy.

Temperature Drops Here as Blizzard Sweeps on City; Cold Perils Many in West

A blizzard with sub-zero temperature, sweeping the entire Ohio valley, will have the Pittsburgh region in its grip tonight with the coldest weather of the winter.

Forecaster William S. Brotzman announced that the temperature would fall to about five degrees below zero.

RAPID DROP

The temperature will fall rapidly during the day. The official thermometer reading at 8 a. m. was 18 degrees and it fell to 13 degrees at 9:30. In Columbus, O., it was 14 degrees below at 8 a. m. In the Southwest the decline was still greater, with two degrees below at Dallas, Tex., and Shreveport, La., the lowest on record for those stations.

The cold wave is moving with marked rapidity and will be of short duration, according to Brotzman. There will be little snow and tomorrow the temperature is expected to rise as rapidly as it has fallen today.

50 BELOW IN WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—With temperatures ranging from 10 to 55 degrees below zero, the Middle West today had little hope of early relief. Twenty persons were reported missing in a blizzard near Caspar, Wyo., but 17 others, marooned for five days in a shack near Flagstaff, Ariz., were rescued. American Legion men fought to save 10 families trapped in the flood-swept lowlands at Vincennes, Ind. At Basin, Mont., the mercury dropped to 50 below zero.

BULLETIN.

Striking taxicab drivers, idle for seven days, today asked Secretary of Labor James J. Davis to take a hand in the strike. Thomas G. Robertson, acting president of the State Federation of Labor, asked Davis, who is in Pittsburgh, to confer with a committee of strikers. Davis promised an answer later today.

Court action compelling Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh to issue permits to the new drivers of the Green and Yellow taxicabs was threatened today by Paul Houston, president of the Green Cab Company, as the strike entered its seventh day.

Company officials have not decided whether the action will be in the form of a mandamus.

Records Reveal Another Mother Dry Law Victim

You may think the case of Mrs. Sue Brown, of Salinas, Cal., who was thrown into prison on the eve of motherhood by a zealous prohibition agent, is the only case, or an exceptional extraordinary case wherein the attempted enforcement of the prohibition law took the life of an innocent person. But nearly a year before Mrs. Sue Brown, alone and unattended, gave birth to her dead child in a prison cell, the death of a woman, about to become a mother, who died at the hands of dry officials, was chronicled and printed in the Congressional record.

"Mrs. A. D. May, of Nellis, Boone County, died at 11 o'clock this morning in the McMillan Hospital of a bullet wound inflicted Sunday night when officers served a liquor warrant upon Fleming Ramsey, a boarder at the May home.

"The officers, Sam Marrow, state prohibition agent, and Constable Clinton Carnes, of Peytona district, were arrested by order of the Boone County sheriff and placed in the county jail at Madison for hearing tomorrow afternoon before Magistrate C. F. Hager, of Scott district.

"Last night Mrs. May signed a statement declaring that Sam Morrow fired the shot that hit her. This statement was mailed to the sheriff's office at Madison last night. Dr. W. A. McMillan telephoned there yesterday after Mr. May had told the story, and the men were arrested upon that information. The officers appeared at the May residence and, producing a warrant, demanded the surrender of Ramsey. The man attempted to run from the house and escape. The officers then, according to Mr. May, fired several times.

"Ramsay stopped, and he was taken at once to a district justice of the peace and arraigned for being drunk. May obtained medical aid for his wife and brought her to Charleston, arriving here early yesterday morning.

"When arrested yesterday, the officers said they did not know that Mrs. May had been shot during the raid.

"Mrs. May was to become a mother soon, it was said at the hospital today."

Opera Singer Asks $98,970 in Alimony

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Trial of the case of the suit of Mrs. Arabella Merrifield against George E. Merrifield, Baltimore chain store organizer, was continued today to Monday. Mrs. Merrifield, an opera singer, seeks $98,970 back alimony. Mrs. Merrifield testified they parted in 1916 and she was to get $130 weekly, plus $1,500 every six months for life. Later she said she signed a waiver and she now asks this waiver be set aside. They were married in 1906.

Penn Township Contractor Revives as House Burns; Payroll of $300 Stolen

Glenn C. Reiter, 33, building contractor, was shot, beaten, robbed and left unconscious in his home in Penn Township, to which three robbers set fire early today.

Reiter recovered consciousness in time to dash from the burning house, but the building, his barn and garage nearby were destroyed by the flames.

TELEPHONE RUSE

The Reiter home, a six-room bungalow, is on the Saltsburg road at Reiter avenue. Reiter was alone in the house at midnight when three men called him to the porch and asked permission to telephone a North Side garage that their auto had broken down.

"Give me the number," Reiter offered, "and I'll make the call."

They did. The operator told Reiter there was no such number. As he turned from the phone one of the robbers switched out the lights.

FIVE SHOTS FIRED

Reiter moved for the kitchen. Five shots rang out. A bullet ripped Reiter's left elbow. He grabbed a chair and swung at the nearest assailant. Then he collapsed.

Two hours later he regained consciousness. He was badly beaten and the house was filled with smoke. He made his way to the burning garage and drove his

DAVIS IN CITY; MUM ON STRIKE

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis arrived here today from New York.

"I have not come here to discuss politics," was his greeting to newspapermen before they had a chance to propound any questions. "I am here purely on civic matters."

"Will you take any part in trying to settle the taxicab strike?" the Secretary was asked.

"Strikes are seldom settled by giving out newspaper interviews," replied the Secretary.

Davis is here to deliver an address this afternoon at the dedication of the new home of Etna Lodge No. 932, B. P. O. E., Locust street, Etna. At 5:30 o'clock he will attend a dinner of the state convention, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in the William Penn Hotel. He will address the Odd Fellows at their session tonight in North Side Carnegie Hall. At 10:30 o'clock he will broadcast a speech to the Wilkins and Byrd expeditions in the Antarctic.

Flames Raze Home Of Senator Pittman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Fire destroyed the home of Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, early today, wiping out one of the show places of suburban Washington. Senator and Mrs. Pittman escaped uninjured and were able to remove considerable furniture and personal effects from the reach of the flames. Senator Pittman estimated the loss at from $50,000 to $75,000.

Pittsburgh's Great Auto Show Opens Today

Pittsburgh had its first opportunity today to view the 1930 creations of the automobile industry en masse when the doors of Motor Square Garden were opened at 1 o'clock for the Annual Automobile Show. The show is being presented by the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, with W. N. Owings, secretary, as general manager. The show will be closed tomorrow, but will reopen Monday for a week's display.

There is more to see this year than there has been at any other show for almost the last decade, states Mr. Owings. There are four developments of the industry that are outstanding in the exhibition this year. They are the front-drive automobile, many additions to the field of straight eight and V-type eight engines, more four-speed and silent-second transmissions and downdraft carburetion.

Visitors to the show also will learn that more than double the number of cars that employed safety glass a year ago have included it as standard equipment in the present models. Safety has been given further consideration in more powerful brakes, heavier and stronger chassis and all-steel and steel protected bodies.

Text of Irene Schroeder's Letter Asking 'Someone to Pray for Us'

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 18.—Revealing her hope in prayer, Irene Schroeder has written a letter to a Phoenix couple, a Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, who had sent her a message that they were praying for her. The text of the Schroeder letter follows.

"Mr. and Mrs. Dawson: I received your most kind letter and certainly appreciated it. You most certainly have Jesus in your hearts to write such a nice letter.

"I am very glad you prayed for us and hope you would please continue to do so. We certainly need someone to pray for us. It sure is a nice thing for you and your wife to be able to go to prayer meeting together.

"I would be very happy if I had strength to believe as you do, because I surely want to.

"I know if I had the courage to get on my knees and pray, God would forgive me, because God is just and He is merciful.

"If it wouldn't be too much trouble for you I hope you would come over and talk to Mr. Winthrop. I am sure he would be glad to see you if you would be kind enough to come over and tell him who you are.

"He might not believe you if you didn't show him this letter.

"More power to you and God bless you.

"I will close for this time.

"Sincerely,

"THE TRIGGER WOMAN."

P. S. Thanks for the literature. I sure did appreciate it and enjoy it."

Furniture Magnate's Son Sued by Wife

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Ben Karpen, son of the late Isaac Karpen, furniture magnate, is in more trouble. Karpen is now facing trial on a check charge in Los Angeles and his second wife, Edna Marie Thomas, has obtained a warrant for his arrest on child-abandonment. Mrs. Thomas was divorced from Karpen five years ago at which time Judge Joseph Sabath awarded her alimony for the support of a year-old son. Mrs. Thomas claims that Karpen has not paid one cent and alleges he owes her $5,000.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Five armed men and one woman authorized to bring Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague back to Lawrence County to stand trial for the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, of the state highway patrol, left at 8:50 a. m. today for Phoenix, Ariz.

The party expects to reach Phoenix, where Irene and her sweetheart are held prisoner, late Monday night or Tuesday morning, with the requisition papers bearing signature of Gov. John S. Fisher. They anticipate little or no delay in obtaining custody of the blonde and Dague.

GLENN DAGUE CONFESSES IDENTITY

Makes His First Admission Since Arrest; Arizona Will Agree to Extradition

By AL GOUGH
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

Mr. Gough made a perilous airplane trip to Arizona to "cover" for Sun-Telegraph readers the story of Irene Schroeder, the blonde trigger woman, and her accomplices. His first article from the place where Mrs. Schroeder and her companions "shot it out" with Arizona sheriffs appeared yesterday. Mr. Gough also got the first—and exclusive—story of the killing of Highway Patrolman Brady Paul at New Castle.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 18.—Irene Schroeder seeks solace in prayer as she awaits in the Maricopa County Jail the coming of those who will return her to New Castle, Pa., to face with her sweetheart a charge of murdering Corp. Brady Paul, of the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol.

In a letter replying to a Phoenix man and wife who wrote to her in the county jail, telling her they had prayed for her, she says:

"I know if I had the courage to get on my knees and pray, God would forgive me, because God is just and He is merciful."

She signs the missive—"The Trigger Woman."

GETS NEW DRESS

The letter to Mrs. Schroeder was sent yesterday. The only signature was "Mr. and Mrs. Dawson." There are many persons of that name in Phoenix. Police made no effort to find the author of the missive and concluded no harm could come from delivering it to the prisoner. Inclosed in the missive were several religious tracts—the "literature" for which Irene thanks the Dawsons.

Another mysterious gift was delivered anonymously to Irene yesterday, just before her arraignment with W. Glenn Dague before Justice of the Peace Lawrence E. Ice on a charge of assault with attempt to commit murder. The gift—a new black silk dress Irene's exact size, came by messenger from a local department store. She proudly arrayed herself in it and took her place beside her sandy-haired companion while the charge was read. When asked how they pleaded, both replied in unison, "Our name is Winthrop—not Dague or Schroeder."

ADMITS IDENTITY

This morning, however, Dague admitted his true name.

"Yes, I am Glenn Dague."

Coming after three days of almost endless questioning by Maricopa County authorities, this admission of the man captured with the blonde "trigger woman"

A LIVE PROSPECT :-: By Quin Hall

DEFY BURGESS IN GLASSPORT

Glassport's police department was functioning early today despite the action of Burgess Seward Gross, suspending all its members from Chief Michael Cobac down yesterday.

Six men were on duty last night on order of James Lucot, chairman of the police committee of the Borough Council.

Sergt. Fred Quinn who had been suspended by the burgess when he refused to go on day duty because he said council told him to report at night, occupied the desk last night. Chief Cobac worked yesterday, police said, although the burgess had ordered him to the night shift.

The mixup is due, authorities say, to the newly-organized Council headed by James C. O'Brien, a county detective, as president, being on the opposite political fence from Burgess Gross. Council fired the entire force Monday night and engaged a new complement of officers.

The burgess, it is understood, had since re-engaged former Chief William Rushe and former Lieut. David George, but neither reported for work following an edict by the police committee that the burgess would have to pay the officers out of his own pocket if they did.

Although Council is not due for another meeting until February, authorities said today a special meeting to iron out the situation might be expected shortly.

Archie Gunn, Noted Painter, Dies at 66

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Archie Gunn, painter, illustrator and designer of magazine covers, died in a sanitarium here. He was 66 years old.

Gunn was a native of England, and when he was 17 years old painted a portrait of Lord Beaconsfield for the statesman's secretary, Lord Rowton. He was best known for his pastels of girls. Some 20 years ago the "Archie Gunn Girls" were to be found in reproductions all over the United States.

SLEUTH FINED AS SNOOPER

Henry Schoolberg, who said he was a private detective, of 321 Stratford avenue, was fined $10 at a Homestead police court hearing last night after Daniel S. Stone, who conducts a Homestead drug store, had caused his arrest.

A victim of mistaken identity, Stone was released from the custody of Homestead police on a writ of habeas corpus following his arrest earlier in the week.

Chicago police had asked for the arrest of D. S. Stoney, an alleged confidence man, and Police Chief Michael J. Maroney apprehended Stone without a warrant, he claimed. His release was granted in court. Schoolberg loitered about the drug store and also quizzed Police Sergt. Evan Williams about Stone, it was testified.

Lawrence Moncreif will be in charge of the Sunday School at 1:30 p. m., when the topic will be "The Saviour's Baptism and Temptation." The adult Bible class will be lead by Clifford Lockwood at the same hour. There will be a Praise service at 3:30 and Young People's at 6:00, with Vera Morton leading.

BRANCH CHIEFS OF CHEVROLET GET DRILL

Outlines of the sales and promotional campaign developed by the Chevrolet Motor Company for this year were explained today to executives and staff members of the local factory branch.

The session, held this morning in the William Penn Hotel, closed a two-day get-together program that opened yesterday with H. J. Klingler, vice president in charge of sales, and M. E. Coyle, vice president and general auditor, here to address 800 tri-state dealers and bankers. Klingler, who arrived here from Washington, where he had discussed business conditions with President Herbert Hoover, left last night for Detroit.

BANQUET HELD

Today's session was in charge of J. C. Chick, of Detroit, assistant general sales manager, assisted by C. L. Alexander, of Flint, Mich., regional manager, and Charles L. Milliken, Pittsburgh zone manager. The afternoon will be occupied with a sight-seeing tour.

The sales program to dealers yesterday closed with a banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night. While short addresses were made by Klingler, Coyle, Chick, Alexander and Milliken, an elaborate entertainment program was the feature. During the evening, Wesley Holland, of Pittsburgh, was introduced as one of the first 10 star salesmen on Chevrolet forces throughout the country. He has been elected regional president of the 100-Car Club.

NEW CAR DESCRIBED

The demonstration yesterday afternoon in Syria Mosque for the dealers was the most massive ever undertaken by the company. Complete stage settings were used in dramatic playlets that conveyed the factory message to dealers on the improved 1930 car.

Pittsburgh was the third city to see the demonstration on a tour of 42 key cities from coast to coast. Klingler's visit was one of only a few he will attend. Chick will be in direct charge of the tour.

2 FIRES FOUGHT IN HOMESTEAD

West Homestead and Munhall fire departments last night were summoned to extinguish a fire which damaged a three-story frame building in Sixth avenue, near Ann street, Homestead. The fire started in the third floor, firemen said, which was occupied by Negroes. The loss was estimated at $1,000.

Homestead firemen were responding to another alarm when flames were seen in the Sixth avenue building. The loss of the earlier fire was negligible, firemen said.

Girl Scout Leader Courses Scheduled

Girls Scouts in Pittsburgh next week will enter upon a new series of Scout leadership. Courses will be held as follows:

Elementary courses for new leaders, 10 a. m. to noon in the Downtown Y. M. C. car to safety. He called a neighbor, G. C. Whiteman.

SOUGHT PAYROLL

The only motive apparent to County Detectives Sam Whisner and Anthony Ferraro as they began their investigation was robbery. Reiter said he frequently carried payrolls as large as $7,000 on Friday nights, a fact the robbers were probably aware of.

Reiter's wife and daughter were in Turtle Creek, where the Reiter child attends school.

Reiter said he knew of no enemies. He has never fired a workman, he pointed out.

While he was badly beaten, Reiter, in Columbia Hospital, was expected to recover.

Strikers met last night at the Moose Temple, but aside from the usual discussion of strike procedure, nothing was done.

Houston last night issued the following statement:

"The wage increase offered to our men, effective last week, means an increase for the Green Cab Company of $129,547.62. During 1929 the books of our company show that the actual payroll was $585,176.47. On the basis of paying our men the 37½ per cent commission on bookings the payroll this year will be $714,724.09. This is an average increase of $200 or more to each driver."

SAVE 3 IN FIRE DOWNTOWN

An aged woman and her two daughters were routed from their beds when fire broke out in the basement of a vacant store room at 126 Fourth avenue, last night.

Mrs. Maria Neeland, 75, and her daughters, Margaret and Maria Neeland, were led to the street by police and firemen when smoke filled their apartment over the store room.

The blaze was confined to the basement and resulted in a $100 loss, Deputy Chief Louis Connelly said.

officials have little hope he will be apprehended. Charles Evans, of Benwood, W. Va., who knows Crawford, told District Attorney John Powers, of Lawrence County, that a newspaper photograph of the second man held at Phoenix is not that of Crawford.

"That's Irene, all right," said Evans when shown the photos by Prosecutor Powers. "She looks like her brother, Eddie, who died out West. But that's not Tom Crawford. He weighed 180 pounds and that fellow Wells looks to weigh about 150."

VICTIM IN PARTY

Others in the party were Pvt. Ernest Moore, buddy of Corp. Paul, who was wounded at the same time Paul was killed in a battle with bandits on the Butler road, December 27; County Detective H. M. Lee, Sheriff Frank N. Johnston, Lieut. J. Boettner, of the state police, and Mrs. Minnie McKibben, New Castle policewoman.

Bart Richards, a member of the state legislature and representative of a New Castle paper, was an unofficial member of the party.

Mrs. McKibben, who weighs 210 pounds, will have the task of remaining at Irene's side throughout the return trip.

PAIR MAY BE SHACKLED

She and the Schroeder woman will occupy a compartment in the long journey back to New Castle, according to present plans. If deemed necessary, they will be shackled together, Mrs. McKibben is not armed.

Prosecutor Powers plans to take Irene and Dague before the grand jury which sits March 3, with a speedy trial to follow.

"As to Donnie, he'll stay here," said Powers.

Two Men Arrested In Moonshine Plant

Federal prohibition agents with the aid of Bellevue police, early today confiscated 1,375 gallons of moonshine liquor from a frame garage in the rear of 52 South Euclid street, Bellevue, and arrested Charles Permaso, of 1274 Ridge avenue, city, and Joseph Calbrona, of South Bryant street, Bellevue.

HEAVY GUNS TRAINED ON DRY LAW

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The most formidable attack on prohibition since the Supreme Court upheld the Volstead act was scheduled to be launched in the House today.

Inspired by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, the anti-prohibitionists planned to question the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment ratification.

The New Yorker will invoke this issue in the hope of shutting off all appropriations for enforcement of the dry law. Although his move seemed predestined to failure, it carried up tremendous possibilities and may well be carried into the courts for final ruling.

SAYS LAW IS DEAD

When the House gets around to consideration today of the $15,000,000 item in the Treasury appropriation bill which is intended for enforcement costs, La Guardia will make a point of order against it on the ground the Eighteenth Amendment actually went out of existence three years ago. He will cite the language of the amendment itself to prove his contention.

The wets in the Senate refused to be daunted by the dry challenge and raised up equally loud voices in demanding a speedy vote. They took the position it would help bring matters to a head and advance the date of ultimate submission of the prohibition question to the American people.

As an ace in the hole, the anti-prohibitionists held back a movement to force through such rigid enforcement measures as to rouse the ire of the nation and bring about a rebellion that would be felt at the polls.

The House maneuver had many interesting possibilities, even though it admittedly will be abortive. If La Guardia's point of order should be upheld, it would result in instantaneous nullification of the prohibition amendment. The actual constitutionality of the amendment would be thrown into the courts, but with Congress withholding money there would be no enforcement.

STEAM ROLLER METHODS

Drys planned to meet the move in steam roller fashion, although they probably will not be able to shut off some vicious debate. The House will be sitting as "the committee of the whole" during today's consideration of the treasury appropriation bill. When the prohibition item is reached and La Guardia makes his objection, under the rules it will be referred to Representative Snell (Rep.), of New York, chairman of the Rules Committee, for a "curbstone" opinion. Snell is a dry and unquestionably will rule it out of order. La Guardia may then appeal to the House, but should he do so he would precipitate what in effect would be a vote on the Eighteenth Amendment itself. This, of course, would be carried by the drys by a handsome majority.

U. S. JURY FINDS 135 TRUE BILLS

One hundred and thirty-five true bills were handed down this week by the United States grand jury that late yesterday completed its special term and was dismissed. Ninety true bills were handed down the last day. A large majority of the 135 indictments were based on violations of the prohibition laws. Approximately 200 persons are named in the indictments.

Howard C. Thompson and Charles H. Brown who were returned to Pittsburgh from Greensburg yesterday were among those indicted. The men are charged with transporting a stolen automobile from West Virginia to Pennsylvania. Although only returned here yesterday, they were given a preliminary hearing before the United States commissioner and a short time later the case was presented to the grand jury.

Miss Hurtt being removed from a hospital to her sorrow-stricken home. Injured in a trolley accident, necessitating amputation of one leg, she and two young sisters were orphaned when both parents, leaving the hospital after a visit, were killed by a hit-run driver. Kansas City people were aroused and raised $10,000 for her medical attention and to keep the girls.

Reporter Battles Storms To Get Story of 'Blonde'

By AL GOUGH,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

(This is the story of Mr. Gough's wild ride by airplane, automobile and train across the United States to cover the story of the capture and return East of Irene Schroeder. He succeeded in being the first Pittsburgh staff man to get his dispatches to his newspaper.)

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 18.—The quickest way across the continent—air mail. With this thought in mind, I hopped off from Bettis Airport with Cliff Ball's midnight run to Cleveland only to find disappointment on the other end.

Ships on the N. A. T. line west out of Cleveland were warned of bad weather in the Middle West and refused to carry a passenger. The next hope was T. A. T., leaving Columbus at daylight the next morning, but how to reach there in time presented a problem.

Racing in an automobile from the municipal airport at Cleveland, we just made it in time to catch a train for the Ohio capital. Another race by automobile from the railroad station in Columbus put us on the field in time to catch the first West-bound ship out of the Eastern terminal in a week. There was no time for breakfast.

In easy jaunts, we flew across the continent through Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Wichita, arriving finally at Waynoka, Okla. From Waynoka, we boarded a train for an overnight trip into Clovis, N. M., where we boarded another plane for Albuquerque.

The ship was cancelled because of bad weather, but after a short wait the pilot finally received clearance orders and we flew on into Winslow, Ariz., about 180 miles north of Phoenix.

Twice pilots tried to get over the mountain range covered with four to 10 feet of snow and about which clouds hung ominously. Each time they were forced back to Winslow. Automobile travel was impossible because of the snow drifts. Rail travel was the only salvation and the next morning, we awoke to sunshine and summer weather in Phoenix.

Bishop, Mate of Last Baby Born at Mt. Vernon, Dies

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The Right Rev. Beverley D. Tucker, bishop of the diocese of Southern Virginia, one of the best known Episcopal churchmen in the South, died at a local hospital last night at the age of 83 years.

Bishop Tucker was born in Richmond and received his early education in Geneva, Switzerland, at which time his father was United States consul at Liverpool.

The younger Tucker was 15 years old at the outbreak of the Civil War. In 1864 he enlisted in the Confederate army, and served in engagements around Richmond, being with Gen. Lee's army at the Appomattox surrender. Gen Lee was a close friend of the family.

After the war young Tucker entered the Virginia Theological Seminary, near Alexandria, and was graduated from that institution in 1873. He was ordained an Episcopal by Bishop John Johns, and on July 22, 1875, he was married to Anne Maria Washington, the last child to be born at Mount Vernon. Nine sons and four daughters, all of whom are living, were born to the couple. They are:

The Right Rev. Dr. Harry St. George Tucker, bishop of Virginia; the Rev. Dr. Beverly Tucker, Jr., rector of St. Paul's Church, Richmond; the Rev. Herbert Nash Tucker, rector of St. Paul's Church, Suffolk; the Rev. Francis Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown, D. C.; Dr. Augustine W. Tucker, head of St. Luke's Hospital, Shanghai, China; Ellis Tucker, a teacher at the Shanghai Institution; J. Randolph Tucker, a lawyer of Welch, W. Va.; Richard B. Tucker and Lawrence F. Tucker, in business in Pittsburgh; Mrs. Winthrop Lee, Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. Lake White, Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. Malcolm Griffin, Bedford, and Mrs. Lila Tucker, of Norfolk.

U. S. DELEGATES ABANDON HOPES FOR ARMS AGREEMENT

MRS. MARY E. WHITE — NURSE MARY WALSH

Mrs. White, 23, widow of seven weeks, as she received her five-week-old baby at Roselia Foundling, where it was taken when railroad police found it in the B. & O. depot. It was only lost.

MOTHER FINDS LOST BABY

It was the reunion of Mrs. Mary E. White, of 3614 Chartiers avenue and her five-weeks'-old daughter—missing for more than 24 hours after the child was left in the custody of an unidentified woman for a moment at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad station.

From early Thursday Mrs. White tramped the city streets, frantic with grief at the loss of her only child. Before that she had gone to the railroad station and while in the women's rest room a stranger held the child. Before Mrs. White returned to the waiting room both were gone.

Unaware that the babe had been discovered by station police and taken to the Roselia Foundling Home, Mrs. White began her frantic hunt.

Late yesterday a motorcycle officer found the mother wandering downtown. She told him her story. Just as she reached the breaking point the officer took her to the Missing Person Bureau, where Michael Feeney, its head, directed her to the Foundling Home.

Mrs. White sat in the reception room, she barely able to control her emotions as the cries of her baby being brought down in the elevator, reached her ears.

JAIL 2, SEEK 2 IN RAE KILLING

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—County Prosecutor John S. Powers this morning announced that investigators of his office have in their possession confessions from two New Castle youths, who, according to the district attorney, admit the slaying Wednesday night of Clark Rae, 60, retired farmer of Neshannock Township.

Powers announced that L. B. McAnaney and Charles F. Barrett, special investigators, last night arrested Charles Llewellyn, 19, and William Grimm, 20, New Castle youths. The young men were picked up in a pool room. Two other men are implicated in the alleged confessions, Powers stated.

Llewellyn and Grimm, who were questioned through the night and early today, signed confessions, relating the part they played in the crime and implicating two other local men, according to Powers. Charges of murder immediately were preferred against the prisoners before Alderman L. C. Mantz.

Rae was shot to death by four young men who held him up at his home Wednesday.

DERELICT MATE JAILED BY WIFE

John Hyrne, 41, who was married the afternoon of December 31 and that evening, it is alleged, left his 17-year-old wife when the whistles and bells were announcing the New Year, is in the county jail today unable to provide the $300 surety bond demanded by the court in which the wife appeared against him, seeking maintenance.

Mrs. Dolores Hyrne, the wife for a day, appeared before Judge R. A. Kennedy yesterday, seeking support from her husband. She said her husband left to get a lamp a few minutes before midnight, saying he would return. He never did, she said. At his former rooming house she was told he was ill and unable to see her, she told the court.

Judge Kennedy ordered Hyrne to pay his wife $6 a week. Hyrne, unable to provide surety bond, was committed to jail.

Youngstown Mother Hangs Self in Home

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 18.—After frightening her 8-year-old daughter out of the house by threatening to cut her throat, Mrs. Elizabeth Soltesz, 38, went to the cellar of her home and hanged herself. She leaves four children. Her husband, Joseph, coming home from work, found his wife's body dangling from the end of a clothesline.

MULDOWNEY SLATED FOR PROMOTION

Brother of Councilman Will Be Named Instructor in Firemen's Training School

William F. Muldowney, captain at No. 5 Fire Company and a brother of Councilman M. J. Muldowney, has been selected by Mayor Kline for the vacant instructor's position at the firemen's training school, according to rumor.

Captains will receive $2,940 and the two training school instructors, $3,180 under the new schedule provided in the referendum approved by the voters at the last election.

JOB ATTRACTIVE

The instructor's job is considered the most attractive in the fire bureau with hours from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. and no work on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays. The Mayor made the selection from a long list of applicants, it was said.

The position became vacant about 10 days ago, when Louis Conley was promoted to deputy fire chief.

MAY ADVANCE BERMAN

Joseph Engelsberg and Harry Feldman, leaders for Mayor Kline in the Third and Fifth Wards, respectively, are said to have agreed upon the promotion of Paul Berman from lieutenant at South Side Station to inspector at Central Station, to succeed James A. Hoey.

It was credibly reported last week that Hoey would be transferred to Oakland Station and that Inspector Albert Beebe, present incumbent, was to be named assistant superintendent of police to fill a vacancy caused when Leo D. Coleman was reduced to a patrolman.

Officers Elected By M'Donald Bank

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the McDonald Savings Bank and Trust Company, the following were elected directors for the ensuing year: B. D. Tillinghast, J. Kerr McCarty, G. L. Ducray, J. C. Mettler, D. C. Brown, John C. Judson, Andrew Young and T. M. Elliott. The old officers will be retained as follows: President, D. C. Brown; vice presidents, B. D. Tillinghast and J. Kerr McCarty; secretary and treasurer, T. M. Elliott; assistant treasurer, R. F. Brady.

Earnings for the past year were equivalent to 31 1-3 per cent of the capital.

Threatened, Beaten, Wife Asks Divorce

A recital of threats and blows and the hurling of missiles was told by Mrs. Hazel Quillin, of 308 Oakland avenue, testifying against her husband, Orval P. Quillin, dentist, of Greenville, in the hearing of her divorce suit before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court. They were married January 2, 1917, when both were in school at Oil City, and separated July 11, 1928. They have a son aged 12. Once her husband knocked her down when she inquired the cause of his staying out late at night, Mrs. Quillin testified.

Smithfield Street Stores Burglarized

Two Smithfield street stores were entered this morning by thieves, who jimmied the front doors. Entering the store of the Harris Electric Company at 629 Smithfield street, the thieves stole $15 from the cash register. Across the street in the same block they jimmied the door of the Independent Wall Paper Company store at 634 Smithfield street. So far as could be determined, nothing was taken from the second place.

BLAST INQUEST HEARS EXPERT

The third session of the inquest into the Munhall gas explosions which caused the death of six persons December 5 and 6 got under way today.

An affidavit of John R. Conway, an employe of the Munhall postoffice, wrecked by the blast, told of noticing a strong odor of gas before the explosion. He is still in the Homestead Hospital from injuries.

John Croffshaw, explosive expert of the United States Bureau of Mines, and James O. Handy, of New York, engaged by the Munhall estate, owner of the wrecked building, gave technical testimony as to the blast.

Westinghouse Gets Locomotive Orders

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received orders for two 70-ton 300-horsepower oil-electric switching locomotives for the Great Lakes Steel Corporation. The locomotives will be used by the steel corporation in the Detroit plant. The Westinghouse company has received an order from the American Steel and Wire Company for one 70-ton 400-horsepower oil-electric locomotive to be used in the Newburgh Steel Works, Cleveland.

Skidding against the curb at Smithfield street and the Boulevard of the Allies this morning, Motorcycle Patrolman Albert Florig suffered cuts and bruises. He was treated at Mercy Hospital and later returned to work.

Says French Wife Tossed Dishes His Way

His wife, Mrs. Felicia Brandt, 38, a French teacher, now of New York, threw dishes at him, according to the testimony of Orval F. Brandt, 28, of Knoxville, at the hearing of his divorce suit before Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court. She retained his clothes after their separation, he said. When she entertained she took the keys of their house on Melwood street and refused to let him in, refused to cook his meals and called him names, Brandt testified. Mrs. Brandt, born in France, appeared in denial of the charges. They were married January 6, 1927, and separated six months later, June 30, according to his testimony.

One Killed, Two Hurt As Auto Overturns

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Stephen Wargo, 20, of near West Brownsville, was killed when the wheels on his automobile locked, causing it to upset. His skull was crushed. Two companions, Bud Barger, 28, and Andrew Kuhar, 19, escaped with minor cuts and bruises. The car was being driven at a terrific rate of speed when the accident occurred, police say.

Rebels Driven Off By Cantonese Navy

CANTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The Cantonese navy has driven the Anti-Nanking forces from Hoihow, chief post of the Island of Hainan, and has occupied the city. The British sloop Magnolia reported by radio that all was quiet and that there had been no interference with foreigners.

SAINT GAUDENS' HOST DIES

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Dr. Hans Froelicher, acting president of Goucher College, fell dead in the alumnae lodge of the college last night while conversing with Homer Saint Gaudens, son of the famous sculptor and director of the department of fine arts, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

Dr. Froelicher, with his wife and their guest, had finished dinner and were starting for the college where Saint Gaudens was to lecture. While the college chief was putting on his coat he was stricken with an attack of a heart ailment from which he had suffered for years.

Dr. Froelicher was born 60 years ago in Solo-Thurn, Switzerland, and was christened Johann Boptiste, a name which he later shortened to Hans. He came from a long and distinguished line of professors, painters and others interested in the arts. He studied at Dalle, France, in England, and was graduated from the gymnasium at Solo-Thurn in 1885. From there he went to the University of Zurich and Munich, receiving his doctor of philosophy degree in 1888 from the former.

U. S. HITS BACK AT WALSKA

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Mme. Ganna Walska, opera singer and wife of Harold McCormick, Chicago multi-millionaire, won't have the last word after all.

Mme. Walska Thursday won a victory over the customs service when it was ruled a woman has the right of selecting her domicile, even though married, and thus the singer could reside in Paris and bring $2,000,000 worth of jewels and clothes to this country without paying duty while on a visit.

But today the United States struck back, announcing the case will be taken to the United States Court of Appeals, Washington, for final review.

And further it was pointed out her victory may cost Mme. Walska a pretty penny, for income exemption she has claimed as a resident, may not be available to her, if, under the new decision, she is held to be a non-resident.

Badge of Slain Officer Goes to Admiring Son

When Patrolman James Troy came home from his beat Jimmy would grab his dad's hat and Billy to play the time-honored kid's game with his brothers and sisters. The hat was sizes too big and it slid sideways on his head. He was fascinated with the silvery shield and the letters "623."

But Jimmy's father played the real game of "Cops and Robbers" last week. A robber's bullet killed him.

Jimmy marched soberly into the office of the superintendent of police. There he was told what the police thought of his dad, and then, for the first time in Boston's history, a uniform cap and its insignia went to somebody outside the department.

Jimmy went home to place the cap with its glistening figures "623" in a spot where he could see it going to bed and getting up. He can't quite explain his feelings, but he knows.

Pittsburgh Pioneer Papers Shown at Convention

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—A display of rare documents bearing the signatures of Colonial and Revolutionary commanders from the Historical Hall, Pittsburgh, was a feature of the celebration of the silver anniversary of the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies held here.

The exhibit was loaned to the state library and includes letters by Gen. Anthony Wayne, Gen. Arthur St. Clair, Benjamin Franklin and Gov. Francis R. Shunk; a Pittsburgh marriage license of 1806, old land patents and a map of Pennsylvania of 1830, showing railroads, canals and stage routes.

Announcement was made of the plans to mark the old Forbes road by the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, the work to be undertaken early in the spring. Prof. John Kennedy Lacock, of Harvard University, described the work of the field party in locating landmarks of the pioneer trail. Gov. John S. Fisher delivered an address. Seventy-seven historical organizations compose the federation. Pittsburgh delegates were William H. Stevenson and John E. Potter.

NAVY PARLEY OUTLOOK DARK

First Day In London Reveals Task of Bringing Accord Among Five Powers Futile

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Their first day in London has convinced the American delegates to the five-power naval disarmament conference that the difficulties in the way of anything like complete naval agreements covering all categories are virtually insurmountable.

Japan's demand for a 70 per cent maximum cruiser strength as compared with Great Britain and America; France's suspicious and intransigeant attitude toward the whole undertaking, and Italy's demand for parity with France, coupled with numerous kinks still to be ironed out in the British-American adjustment with regard to capital ships and cruisers, all combine to impress the newly-arrived Americans with the enormity of the undertaking ahead of them.

OUTLOOK DARK

The positions can be reconciled in the three days before the conference actually assembles, but the chances are regarded pessimistically. In the end, most of the American delegates believe the conference's achievements will probably be limited to an extension of the battleship building holiday, which will enable the British and American governments to save three-quarters of a billion dollars each would have spent in the next ten years under the terms of the Washington treaty.

It can be stated most positively that the American position is strongly against the proposal to abolish capital ships, which probably will be advanced by France and Italy, neither of which can afford them.

Reflecting the attitude of the American general board, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson considers battleships still as the "infantry of the sea" and as the "core of the navy."

STIMSON RELIEVED

He was much relieved in talking with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to learn that the latter had not proposed flat and immediate abolition of capital ships, as had been reported.

With regard to Premier MacDonald's hope of eventual reduction and perhaps abolition, the American position is one of academic sympathy, but considers this a long way off and dependent upon future developments.

In the meantime, the American delegates are prepared to examine sympathetically all projects for scaling down the size of ships and gun calibres.

One viewpoint which the Americans will combat with all their strength is the French contention that battleships are offensive vessels, while cruisers, destroyers and submarines are defensive ships. The American position on this thesis is that every ship possesses both offensive and defensive potentialities, and it is absurd to consider them otherwise.

DELEGATES ASSEMBLE

The full American delegation was presented to Prime Minister MacDonald at 10 Downing street at noon. Most of the other delegates from countries to be represented at the conference are arriving over the week-end. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, arrived last night, and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, is due tonight. Premier Andre Tardieu, head of the French delegation, arrives tomorrow. The Japanese delegation, headed by former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, has been in London for some time.

In many respects, the parley has already begun, as the delegates of all the nations concerned have utilized every opportunity for preliminary conferences. The official opening is scheduled for 10 a. m. Tuesday, when King George will deliver an address of welcome to the delegates at their first plenary session in the royal gallery of the House of Lords.

This first session will be a purely formal meeting. The meeting will then adjourn to assemble later at St. James' Palace, adjoining the residence of the Prince of Wales, where all the remaining sessions will be held.

King George is at his Norfolk castle at Sundringham, putting the finishing touches on his speech of welcome, while electricians are already preparing the gigantic wireless hook-up which will carry his address and those of the other delegates to the farthest corners of the globe.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

INTERESTING TOUCHES ON LATEST FROCK AND COAT

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Gradually and gracefully, coats are capitulating to the cape. Ever so many coats designed for Southland wear show capes, some of which are just little shallow trifles, while others are large elaborate affairs, cutting capers in the form of tiers, tucks and other original touches and embellishments. So you see, the cape is capable of a variety of widely diversified treatments, which should give plenty of latitude when choosing a coat for Southern or early spring wear. Every effort is made by the designers to prevent uniformity, with its twin evil, monotony, and it should, therefore, be easy to choose clothes that are distinctive and yet pertain to the mode. And this can be achieved by the woman whose expenditure for clothes is necessarily limited, for thought is just as important when planning and choosing a wardrobe, as is money. The army of smartly dressed business girls is eloquent testimony to the truth of this statement.

* * *

A PLEASING example of the caped coat is shown here today. It was made for wear under sunny Riviera skies, and is both practical and smart. The fabric is homespun in a soft tone of medium brown, with a facing along the front edges and on the beige scarf collar of dark brown and beige jersey. Beige jersey is used as a border on the cleverly cut cape, the sleeves and the front of the garment. An inverted pleat at either side gives width to the skirt and the waistline is nipped in above the hips with several vertical darts. The model is from the collection of Georges et Janin.

* * *

THERE is much of interest in the afternoon frock also shown here, which is from the house of Worth. It is of tobacco brown chiffon velvet which blends beautifully with the ecru lace collar and front jabot. The sleeves manage to be amusingly original with their double puffs placed from wrist to elbow. The silhouette of the skirt is softened by a deep godet at the center front and the three tiered flounces at either side of the skirt. When seen in profile the flounces at back almost achieve a bustle effect, as you may observe from the sketch.

Society Folk Attend Art Concert

AT every concert given here in Pittsburgh there are always some of the city's social leaders in the audience. No matter how many entertainments there are, no matter how many folks come and go, you'll always find members of the social set there.

Pittsburgh society women have always been interested in all the arts, but particularly in music. And of course you know that a group of women, with Mrs. Taylor Allderdice as the founder, has been holding morning musicales for several winters now. And they encourage musicians who have not yet been recognized.

At the concert given last night by Hans Kindler, 'cellist, and Hallie Stiles, soprano, in Carnegie Music Hall before the Art Society I saw Mrs. Allderdice.

And Mrs. John W. Lawrence was there, looking distinguished in a simply cut gown of black velvet and pearls. I also saw Mrs. Ralph E. Flinn.

Barbara Ewing I saw chatting in the foyer during the intermission with Elizabeth Jenkins. Barbara wore a red crepe gown and a mink coat, and Elizabeth, a black velvet wrap collared with white fox. Wine-red satin was worn by Miss Eleanor McCallam. Attractive Mrs. John H. Byerly wore an interesting gown with the waist of biege crepe and the skirt cut very long in the back.

* * *

THE very young school set, the girls of which will be making their bows in three or four years, was entertained last evening in the home of Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, of Hobart street, by Mrs. Diehl and Mrs. William Grey Clyde, of Beechwood boulevard. And the guests of honor were Frances and Margaret Hodge, daughters of the junior Edwin Hodges. Both girls are students at Thurston.

After a cinema, dinner was served at small tables, decorated with baskets of spring flowers. And dancing followed the dinner.

Mrs. Clyde wore black velvet and Mrs. Hodge black lace, with Frances in a wood-violet georgette gown and Margaret in bay green georgette.

* * *

AND I hear that the J. Scott Willocks and their daughter, Virginia, will leave Wednesday for Pasadena, Cal., where she'll spend the winter, and with them will be Mr. Willock's sister, Miss Lillian Willock.

* * *

THERE'S going to be another important wedding this winter right here at home. Attractive Florence Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, Jr., has named her wedding date. She will become the bride of Robert Kerr Follansbee, son of the John Follansbees, of Squirrel Hill avenue, on Thursday afternoon, February 20, at 5:30 o'clock in the Wainwright home.

AFTER having served for 20 years as president of the board of the Lawrenceville Neighborhood House (formerly the Public Wash House and Baths Association), Mrs. Louis E. Rott has resigned and will be succeeded by Mrs. Chauncey Lobinger. Mrs. Rott's resignation was accepted with deep regret at the annual meeting of the board which was held yesterday, and after its acceptance each member expressed her appreciation of the splendid accomplishments of the retiring head during her administration of two decades. Others elected yesterday are: Mrs. Ronald Q. Cleavenger, Mrs. Frank P. Rowand and Mrs. P. O. Naly, vice presidents; Miss Margaret Sutton and Mrs. George A. MacGregor, secretary and treasurer, were re-elected.

Reports showed that 48,731 persons were served in one way or another at the house during the year. Of these 1,709 were children in the day nursery, among whom there has been marked change by reason of the food and medical care given them. In many cases, formerly chronic, complete cures have been effected.

GEORGE SEIBEL, president of the Authors' Club of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Seibel will entertain the club members at tea tomorrow afternoon at their home in Ridgeville street.

Aunt Susan Loses Her Glasses Again

WINIFRED BLACK

FOR goodness sake!

Aunt Susan has lost her glasses again!

Run, Mary; come along, Johnnie; see here, Uncle Frank; put down your work, Mother; lay down your paper, Dad, join the hunt!

Where can they be—those glasses?

I've looked in the dining room, on the sideboard, behind all the glasses—yes, I've even looked in the big flowered pitcher that grandpa brought from Pekin years and years ago. I've even looked in the clock in the hallway. I've taken all the umbrellas out of the umbrella stand and opened them carefully—just outside the door, of course—bad luck in the house, you know.

Mother has looked in the bookcase and under the sofa pillows, and Johnnie has looked under the sofa, and Mary has hunted and hunted. For goodness sake, Aunt Susan, why do you act so about those glasses?

When you are not using them, why don't you have a regular place to put them, and put them there?

Why must you make us leave everything and tear the whole house to pieces looking for those miserable glasses? It actually seems sometimes as if they hid—on purpose.

Johnnie says they do, only he says—a-purpose and he gives Aunt Susan a suspicious look out from under his boyish brows. But Johnnie was right in the midst of a "detekative" story when he was called to service, and he isn't quite responsible.

A glad cry came from the kitchen, a shout such as Columbus must have given when he saw the dark trees rising on the mainland from the deck of his queer old ship.

She and the cook together, each claiming the honor of the discovery.

Where were they?—they were tucked away in the fruit dish, cheek by jowl with the reddest apple and the rustiest pear you ever saw.

"Ah, I remember now," says Aunt Susan mildly. "I thought I'd put them there where I'd be sure to see them."

"I sometimes wish," says Dad bitterly, "that the man who invented glasses had died in his youth."

She adjusts the nuisances to her really aristocratic nose and sits down to scan the thrillers in the evening paper.

"Yes," says Dad, "like the children. I never can make up my mind whether they're more of a comfort or more of a nuisance."

"Why Dad," says Mother.

The children look at each other in that strange Freemasonry of youth—and the household—settles down.

Tomorrow it will all happen again.

60 M. E. PASTORS TO CO-OPERATE IN SERVICES

Retreat for Ministers Arranged for Each Day; Massed Choirs to Sing

The outstanding events on tomorrow's church calendar will be the inauguration of a preaching mission week by the Allegheny district of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The district, comprising 70 churches, with 60 active ministers, will hold meetings each evening, beginning tomorrow, in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. The meetings will be continued until Friday.

W. S. Trosh

The Rev. Dr. Walter S. Trosh, superintendent of the Allegheny District, is general chairman of the event, the Rev. W. Sproul Boyd chairman of the program committee, and the Rev. J. A. McInurff is chairman of the publicity committee.

WILL HOLD RETREAT

In connection with the Preaching Mission Week a private retreat for ministers will be conducted each afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the North Avenue Church. These meetings are open for ministers only and will be in charge of Bishop Francis W. Warne.

Bishop Warne also will speak at each evening meeting. He has been a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church since 1900 and has spent 20 years in India, where he was a member of the National Council, having received his appointment from the King of England.

MASSED CHOIRS SING

The Pittsburgh District of the Methodist Episcopal Church will this week continue a Preaching Mission campaign which was begun one week ago. The Pittsburgh District meetings comprise the congregations of 44 churches. Bishop Warne will conduct a Minister's Retreat at the Christ Church each morning at 10 o'clock.

C. L. Mead

At the evening meetings at the Christ Church Bishops C. L. Mead and William F. McDowell will speak. The combined quartets from six churches will furnish the music and plans have been made to install amplifiers in adjoining rooms of the church to take care of the overflow crowds.

OFFERS PRAYER FOR PEACE

The Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, will speak tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service on "Prayer for Peace." At the evening service the pastor's theme will be "The Message of Shadows."

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

Store-Wide JANUARY CLEARANCE

Begins Monday at 9 A. M.

January Clearance comes later this year than usual. The period has been shortened, but the values have been quickened to do the work in less time. It begins Monday and carries an invitation to the entire community to do some seasonal shopping under extraordinary circumstances.

It will be a thorough-going, store-wide disposal of all odd assortments, broken lines of seasonable apparel, and other merchandise that must be moved at once in order to make way for incoming spring stocks. A clearance of vast proportions, embracing all departments and all floors.

Thousands of articles for men, women and children, as well as for the home, are represented. It is our time for cleaning house—for disposing of surplus stocks. The nature of the values offered in this annual sale is well known...all Horne qualities...the savings are emphatically worth while.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 18.

SAY, this sinking conference is already a success. The American delegation arrived yesterday afternoon and went into conference at once at the American bar and sunk a fleet of schooners without warning. They brought 18 young typewriters with 'em. That's four and a half blondes to the delegate, and I can write in longhand left-handed everything that will be done here in the next month.

But say, the blondes cleaned up. Nobody looked at a delegate. They even brought some marines on the boat to show it was a peace conference. Today I lunch at the embassy with Mr. Dawes to see if we can dig out some clothes so Joe Robinson can get in.

Yours,

WILL.

MULLHALL KICKS WRONG SHIN AND EL BRENDEL CALLS HIM NAMES

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 18.

FRANK ALBERTSON volunteers that he knows a chap who calls his girl, Almond Bar, And explains for us fog bound: "Sweet but Nutty."

In a scene for "The Golden Calf," (not a biblical story,) El Brendel insists in talking out of turn. Whereupon Jack Mulhall in an effort to quiet him, kicks him in the shin.

Jack Munhall.

He rolled up a trouser leg and tied a thin strip of board over. Make the board pop, Jack Millard suggested. Should be funnier.

Camera. Action. Munhall kicked hard. A wild yell from Brendel stopped the scene.

"What's the matter now?" Webb demanded.

"Oh," moaned Brendel, "the dirty pup kicked the wrong shin!"

"Bitter Sweet" Star For Films

EVELYN LAYE, New York star of the Noel Coward operetta "Bitter Sweet," is expected in Hollywood in the near future to sing a talky. Miss Laye should be something new in this town. That is if she has the same ideas she had upon her arrival in New York from London. She refused point blank at that time, to be starred in "Bitter Sweet." She refused even to be featured. She consented to the former only when the critics praised her performance. There have been a few exceptions to the star crave realization in Hollywood. A few. But none were big enough to make the kumquibles listen to reason.

Marie Prevost

Hoot Gibson, Sally Eilers and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hart (he's the W. K. racing driver) are snowed in at Hoot's ranch in Big Bear. Have been for two weeks. Fiction writers have been known to capitalize this kind of situation to prove whether or not hero and heroine really love each other.

Lon Continues To Be Sphinx

Lon Chaney goes to work in a silent picture in a coupla weeks. No title. Chaney and Charley Chaplin at least have the courage of their beliefs.

Lon Chaney.

Bebe Daniels celebrated a birthday. Mrs. May Sunday topped the celebration off with a large and festive party chucked in a private dining room of a local hotel. Some 70 folks present to wish Bebe merry, including Ben Lyon, of course. Jack Gilbert and Ina Claire, Howard Hughes and Billie Dove, Buster Collier and Marie Prevost, the Harold Lloyds, Carmelita Geraghty and Carey Wilson, the Allan Dwans (just returned from Europe), the Henry Hobarts, Pauline Stark and Jack White, Alma Rubens (Alma came alone, looked gorgeous and created something of a sensation), Lew Cody, the Richard (Skeets) Galaghers, William Haines, Jimmy Shields and umpty ump others. Mrs. Sunday had an eight-piece colored band from the Apex Club. Whoops, a goody time. . . .

And—that's all.

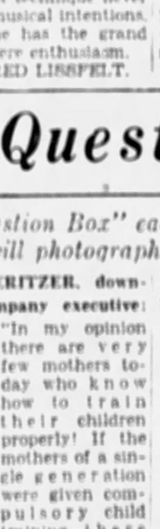
The Art Society presented Hallie Stiles soprano and Hans Kindler cellist in recital at Carnegie Music Hall last night. Joint recitals at best are disastrous to art, but somebody in the Art Society slipped when this program was permitted to be printed. There were high spots, of course, during the evening, but the music was often trifling stuff.



J. Fred Lissfelt

Hallie Stiles comes with a background of the Paris Opera Comique, and has recently entered the roster of the Chicago Opera. Her voice quality rarely suggests the lyric soprano, and has obviously not yet realized its fullest possibilities. Her singing of Schumann's "Fruehlingsnacht" was promising, but her encores were unforgivable. She gave a pleasant reading to Oscar Helfenbein's Art Society Prize Song, "Star Call," with the composer at the piano.

Hans Kindler is a most mature player. Instead of the ever-present Popper butterflies and elves, he chose dignified classics of another century, and when he played music of the day, it was from important rebels like Ornstein and Nin, or from Enesco, whose "Roumanian Etude" came as encore. Kindler's tone is luscious, it is delicate; his brilliant technique never intrudes on his musical intentions, and above all he has the grand manner and sincere enthusiasm.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Hill Denies Claims In Divorce Case

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Walter J. Hill, youngest son of the late James J. Hill, pioneer railroad builder, has filed his answer to the complaint of his wife, Mildred Richardson Hill, in her action for divorce, and denied all charges in his wife's affidavit.

The sweeping denial pays particular attention to Mrs. Hill's assertion that her husband was inclined to overindulgence in liquor. In the absence of his client, Attorney James F. O'Connor filed the answer in court here.

Mate Killed, Wife Asks $30,000 Damage

Mrs. Mary Stehle, 34, Maytide street, asked $30,000 damages for the death of her husband, Lewis W. Stehle, in a suit filed against the Nevin Bus Lines, Inc., in Common Pleas Court. Stehle worked for the Pittsburgh Railways Company and when a truck on which he was working October 18 last was struck by a bus at Fulton and Liverpool streets, he was thrown under the truck and killed, the suit alleged. Five children, 4 to 15 years old, were left by Stehle.

COHAN PLAY TO MAKE DEBUT

Everything is ready for the first time on any stage of "Sporting Blood," which George M. Cohan is to present in the Nixon for three matinees next week. The first is to be given on Tuesday and the other two are Thursday and Friday. At evening performances and at the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees Mr. Cohan will be seen in his own offering, "Gambling."

Final rehearsals are in progress for the appearance of Robert Warwick, in the stellar role of "Her Friend the King," with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

Ann Seymour, featured with Ted Healy in "A Night in Venice," which opens a week's stay at the Alvin Monday night, is making her first appearance in revue. Until now she has been prominent in the varieties.

TIFFANY OPENS HERE

Featuring a cast headed by Conway Tearle, Virginia Valli and Ricardo Cortez, "The Lost Zeppelin," an all-talking film of perilous adventure and romance, opens in the redecorated Olympic today, inaugurating the Olympic as the Pittsburgh home of Tiffany Productions, Inc.

Seymour Felix, who staged the ensembles and song numbers for "Sunny Side Up," Fox musical comedy which enters the second week of its run on the Aldine screen Monday, has been directing choruses in the big Broadway revues for years.

Norma Talmadge, star of United Artists' all-talking picture, "New York Nights," which comes to the Penn Monday, has one of the most extensive wardrobes in the United States. Miss Talmadge recently estimated that she has 128 gowns and dresses for all occasions. Most of these, of course, belong to her professional wardrobe.

"SALLY'S" LAST DAY

Marilyn Miller is supported by Joe E. Brown, Pert Kelton and Alexander Gray in the all-talking screen version of her stage success, "Sally," which ends its engagement in the Grand tonight.

The R-K-O Sheridan Square now boasts of having the largest talking picture screen in Pittsburgh. The new screen was recently installed. The first film to be projected upon it is "Seven Keys to Baldpate," the Richard Dix production, which opens a second week in that theater today.

"Rio Rita," film version of the Ziegfeld success, opens today as a feature in the Harris. There is a stage show also.

Plugged Coin Traps 2 Theft Suspects

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—A nickel with two holes in it led to the confession of John Hetzel, Jr., 24, and Frank Cromo, 19, that they entered and robbed five business houses here this week. The coin was among money found on the youths when they were arrested, and after police convinced them it was taken from the cash drawer of the Perry & Henderson feed mill, they confessed.

Both young men will face charges of breaking, entering and larceny before Alderman S. H. Showman.

High School Pupil Ends Life With Gun

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Fiore Deblasio, 14, a freshman at the Dunbar High School, died in the Connellsville State Hospital from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head, police say. He asked to be excused from class and later was found dead, with a revolver by his side in a washroom. No motive is known.

Weighmaster Dies After Mine Mishap

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Jan. 18.—D'Arle P. Bethel, 34, weighmaster of Uhrichsville, crushed between a coal car which he was riding from the tipple of the Wolford coal mine at Newport, three miles south of here, and a car on the switch, died at Twin City Hospital.

CHARWOMAN STANLEY'S HEROINE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

In putting Sir James M. Barrie's play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," on the talk screen, the picture producers have succeeded in imprisoning the heart throbs of a charwoman. And the result is poignant drama—and beautiful drama.

The play, in movie form and under the title of "Seven Days Leave," opened an engagement yesterday in the Stanley. It came heralded as a starring vehicle for Gary Cooper. In reality, however, it hasn't one star but two—the second being Beryl Mercer.

Miss Mercer is seen as a spinster scrubwoman in London who wants to do her bit in the war and who wishes she had a son of her own on the battlefield. Eventually, she finds herself making believe she has just such a son. And here is where Mr. Cooper, as a ne'er-do-well sort of soldier, enters.

OFF BEATEN PATHS

"Seven Days Leave" is one of those pictures that come forth every now and again to defy movie convention and tradition. There are no oozing Gorbo-Gilbert clinches about it; no scenic splurges; no bluebirds and rainbows at the finish. Yet, when the end comes, with three charwomen parading into the fadeout—carrying their hopes and dispairs with them—you realize that you have been the quiet observer of real and human drama—drama that is significant in its simplicity.

MUSICAL GIRLS

The stage revue, "Ingenues' Gambol," consists chiefly of 18 feminine musicians who display versitality. Banjos, accordions, saxophones and cow bells get neat handling from them. Jean Boydell is there with song, dance and Charlotte Greenwood antics. Dick Powell and his band confine themselves to the orchestral pitt and Mr. Powell only claims the spotlight once while he megaphones "Chant of the Jungles."

The opening performance yesterday had a terrible time getting underway. It seems a train was late somewhere and this train happened to have the show's scenery aboard.

ALICE WHITE TALKIE IN ENRIGHT

By EDWARD GOSS

Playing around with a bad, bad gunman, in the person of Chester Morris, almost brings disaster to the little heroine, portrayed by Alice White, in the talkie, "Playing Around," which opened yesterday in the Enright. But Heroine Alice finally ceases her playing and thus pleases audiences and brings on the happy ending. Morris, pretender to the crown of gentleman about town, fools the unsophisticated Alice, shoots her father, who she loves, of course, and is eventually tricked by Alice's soda-jerker sweetheart.

Numerous little dramas like "Playing Around" have been washed across the screen. Audiences have gasped at their dizzy, if somewhat trite, ending. In the Enright this time there is a sharp decline in the gasps, for Alice is not compelled to defend her honor in a sink of sin. It all ends quietly in a railroad station. The old "I don't care" spirit is there, though.

Morris, as the gunman, asks for a cigaret when the law takes him in possession. The cigaret incident may be forgiven considering how well he portrays the knave. Alice leaps here and there. Her heroine doesn't seem the kind quiet gunmen get arrested over.

Jay Mills takes his girls through a bit called "Crimson Blues." Misfortune came to the blues, yesterday, and had several little girls looking embarrassed when the curtain raised on one scene without allowing them time to quit the stage after a previous act. Then again, in a dance act, a member of the chorus backed into the region where only the band should be. The cigar-smoking Joe Penner grabs most of the stage honors; and deserves them.

Aged Woman Dies Of Auto Injuries

V. P. Westover, 18, of Alum Bank, the driver, is under arrest.

Soldier Again

Woman Pours Oil On Fire, Succumbs

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 18.—Mrs. William Charlton, 35, died in a Keyser, W. Va., hospital of burns sustained when she was caught in a fire that followed pouring of oil on a fire at her home here.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Do you think mothers should be required to undergo a compulsory child training course under the jurisdiction of the state?

WILLIAM MARKS, Squirrel Hill, clerk: "In my opinion the state should have the right to give mothers a compulsory course in child training at all times. Some mothers themselves are not equal to the task of properly raising their children and for that reason I think the state, in some cases, should take the matter in hand. However, it's a matter for much thought. Most mothers, though, are sufficiently educated in the laws of nature to raise their offspring properly."

William Marks

ALMA E. KEITH, downtown, beautician: "The average mother is entirely capable of raising her own children in her own way without such unwarranted interference from any outside forces. Nine times out of ten she wants her child to be the best possible and is going to do all in her power to make this come true. Then, if this is so, why should anybody want to 'butt in.' We are not in Soviet Russia."

Miss Keith

WILLIAM MERITZER, downtown, radio company executive: "In my opinion there are very few mothers today who know how to train their children properly! If the mothers of a single generation were given compulsory child training there would be no need for such a concerted action in future years. The proper lessons learned and transmitted to children would stand them in good stead to be handed down to their offspring in turn. After all is said and done the child is the property of the state."

William Meritzer

ELVA GILL SULLIVAN, downtown, cosmetician: "No. I don't think the state or any other force has any right whatsoever to take into its hands the upbringing of children. All mothers are sufficiently well-versed in the problems of child welfare to know how to handle the destinies of their babies. There is no more potent force in a child's life than the lessons he learns at his mother's knee. This has been proven time and time again. Therefore I think it is none of the state's business to even think of such a proposition."

Miss Sullivan

CATHERINE HOWSARE, East Liberty: "I concur with most women, I believe, in contending that no outside forces have any right to enter into what is strictly a proposition between mother and child. Mothers know what to do in raising children. All outside interference, such as compulsory education and training of mothers is to me, a travesty on personal liberty of the parent. No mother is going to raise her child in the wrong way. While there might be a few exceptions, the average is a force for good."

Miss Howsare

H. M. RINGELHEIM, Highland Park, vice president: "I would recommend compulsory education in child training for mothers where the average intelligence is below par. The policy and the amount of training would depend to a great extent on how bright the mother was. Some mothers are too ignorant to attempt to educate their children in the proper manner. In cases of this type the state could do much good. In most cases the plan wouldn't work out."

H. M. Ringelheim

NEWSIES TO SEE THIS TALKING FILM

PITTSBURGH, PA.

So That the Public May Know

We submit for the consideration of the public some of the major conditions relating to the present cab situation

Wage Increase On January 11th, both cab companies put into effect a new wage scale for their drivers, which increased the total payrolls of the companies $225,437.23 annually. Most of this increase went to men employed less than two years. Our belief is that every driver will share in this increase.

Deductions from Wages Green Cab never charged its men for Gasoline. Yellow Cab abolished such charges last July. Other deductions have always been nominal heretofore and were stopped when the new wage scale was announced.

Referring to the wage scale of the men who have been employed over two years, some of these men claim that the new scale instead of being an increase is a reduction. On the days when a two year man books between $9.00 and $10.75 it is a slight decrease, but this applies only to a very small group. For all other men and for all other bookings it is an increase.

Operating Expenses This increased payroll burden voluntarily assumed by the companies was made possible by operating economies, improved cabs and facilities and reductions in overhead, no increased cab fares being asked of the public.

Other Benefits We were anxious to reduce the large labor turnover and make the job of a cab driver of sufficient value to induce permanency of employment. We know that there can be no better investment than increasing the drivers' wages and doing away with a system that penalizes new men. A well paid cab driver is a safe worker.

Employment Policy Our policy is that of neither requiring, forbidding nor questioning membership in any organization whatever. We reserve the right to employ men solely on the basis of their competency as cab drivers.

Working Hours and Conditions Under the new scale ten hours constitutes a day's work. In emergencies it is optional with the men to work for a longer period. A driver receives 37½% of his day's bookings regardless of the number of days worked. All drivers have a regular day off each week.

Drivers' Licenses Pennsylvania must have a state driver's license. In addition in Pittsburgh only, under a law enacted nine years ago he is required to secure a permit from the city. These have usually been issued in a routine manner but in the present emergency the police department has delayed the issuance of such permits.

Police Protection We maintain that we are entitled to receive from the police and the public officials lawful and impartial assistance towards the restoration of normal service.

Cabs When? Investigation convinces us that a substantial number of drivers can be employed, former drivers when they receive proper police protection—new drivers when permits are secured and protection is afforded. The resumption of service is entirely dependent on these factors.

Conclusion Some of our employes have not fully digested these facts and we are confident that when the true situation has been fairly considered there will no longer be any question of the justice of our position and of our desire to operate a cab service of a high standard.

'Public Improvements Promote Progress'

Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County, on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.

Upon the formation of the County Department of Public Works, there was established, within this department, a Bureau of Tests and Specifications, to insure that the best materials were used in the extensive construction projects authorized by the County Commissioners. This Bureau also established and enforced up-to-date specifications for bridge and road construction, thus guaranteeing not only the use of good materials, but also the correct placement of same. With expenditure of Millions of dollars on public works, the quality of materials used and the best type of workmanship is of fundamental importance.

AIRPORT SITE CHOSEN WITH CARE

Tells of Long Period of Study Preceding Work On New Flying Field

By DIRECTOR NORMAN F. BROWN

County Department of Public Works.

Early in 1924 Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of Allegheny County Commissioners, directed the Department of Public Works to prepare plans and estimates for the construction of an airport on what is today known as Rodgers Field. He was induced to take this stand on representations of the United States government aviation heads, who came here from Washington for this express purpose and by those representing the Pittsburgh Aero Club as well as those members of the Chamber of Commerce interested in advocating this site.

All these representatives advocated this site as a future field for Pittsburgh aviation interests. Contracts were awarded and we completed this field in June 1925. The operation results attained here speak for themselves. This field, although only 61 acres in extent, has served a wonderful and useful purpose temporarily, but due to a definite limit to the possibilities of extending its length or area and constructing runways of practical and standard length, it was found to be impossible to be classified as an A-1-A field as defined by Government standards.

ARMSTRONG'S IDEA

Commissioner Armstrong conceived the idea of building a municipal airport to ultimately function in a two-fold manner, serving the aviation requirements of both the county and Pittsburgh, and one which would meet the needs and requirements of an A-1-A field.

At the time he presented these ideas to me I realized the necessity of delegating a special surveying engineer to this service, with the particular idea in mind of first discovering the location of a field which would be acceptable to the great majority of people living in Pittsburgh; second, the development of a site to meet aviation requirements not only of today, but for years to come.

The specific duty of finding the best and nearest field location as close as possible to the center of Pittsburgh I assigned to E. L. Schmidt, chief engineer of the road department. His past experience over a period of 25 years in studying the topography of Allegheny County when locating roads and boulevards made him the best fitted man in our department of public works for this purpose.

WORKED A MONTH

After nearly a month of intensive reconnaissance, thought and study, both by automobile and airplane over the entire county, he recommended as the most suitable location possible and the most adjacent and accessible to the heart of the city of Pittsburgh, the farm lands lying on the north and south of the Lebanon Church road in Mifflin Township, comprising approximately 1,200 acres. This site was presented to and approved by the County Commissioners on October 8, 1928.

In April, 1928, the commissioners had secured the approval of the people of the county by a bond issue for the expenditure of $1,500,000 to develop an aviation field and also secured by solicitation the aid of the mayor and council of Pittsburgh to a further expenditure of $500,000 to aid in this purpose.

GETS APPROVAL

This proposed airport location was presented to the county planning commission and, after thorough inspection and study by all its members, the site was finally approved on September 6, 1928. A favorable recommendation was made by this body to the County Commissioners, signifying their approval and conveying their thought that this was the most practical and economic site to be found within easy distance to the court house.

CHIEF ENGINEER

This Lebanon Church road site was presented to the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce for their inspection and approval. After due consideration by a special committee of its members, the Chamber of Commerce also approved this proposed site to the County Commissioners for consideration and early construction. With these preliminaries completed, all site surveys of the entire acreage were started and authorization was granted by the County Commissioners to proceed with development plans.

In selecting an engineer to take charge of this work, I found G. Brooks Ross, who has long been connected with the county road construction and location department, available for this purpose, and made him chief engineer of the airport, with instructions to complete topographical surveys, plans and estimates of construction costs.

FIRST CONTRACT

July 12, 1929, an initial contract for the construction of this airport was awarded to a local firm of contractors. This contract includes the excavation of nearly 3,000,000 cubic yards of material and the building of numerous subcross drains, as well as the relocation of gas, electric and telephone lines, and other changes necessary to be made to the topography in order to successfully complete the construction of this modern airport.

The landing area and take-off runways for this field have been surveyed and plans made for a complete aviation airport, which will comprise after ultimate completion, practically 1,200 acres of ground.

The port will be provided eventually with two bi-lateral landing areas, either of which will permit landing or taking off in all directions, thus permiting the arrival and departure of planes at the same time. These two landing areas permit the runways to begin and terminate at the control intersection, making it possible for passengers to board or alight at the terminal.

NEW CAFETERIA SUCCESS

The Colonnade Company opened its cafeteria a month ago and has been successful in building up a splendid business. This company established its first cafeteria in the Rockefeller Building at Cleveland in 1911, and under a policy of conservative expansion it has grown until it now has 14 cafeterias operating in nine cities. The Koppers Building branch is the most recent addition, with the most modern equipment.

Only the noon-day meal is served on business days, and all branches are closed on holidays and Sundays. The food is prepared and served by women who are real home makers, but who have a few hours for employment outside the home. The preparation and serving of the food is under the direction of college trained women.

Bottle Business Shows No Change

There was little, if any, change in the glass bottle business during the week. So far as could be learned manufacturers are operating at seasonal capacity with orders on hand and business in view to justify a continuation of these schedules for some weeks at least. Jobbers, while not rushed, are finding themselves sufficiently busy to report business satisfactory so far as volume is concerned. The real encouraging feature of the business is the fact that no particular line of ware is in special demand. The orders call for ware covering the entire list in fairly well balanced proportions.

Union Trust Gets Erie School Bonds

The Union Trust Company has been awarded $700,000 par value School District of Erie, Pennsylvania, 4¼ per cent bonds, dated February 1, 1930, and maturing serially February 1, 1932 to February 1, 1955.

Prague Reports Trade Declines

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 18.—The foreign trade figures for this country for 1929 show a surplus of only $12,000,000 in Czechoslovakia's favor against a $59,000,000 in 1928. The shrinkage is believed due to decreased sugar sales owing to foreign competition.

Employment Drop Shown Last Month

Employment decreased 2 per cent in December, 1929, as compared with November, and payroll totals decreased 0.8 per cent, as reported by the Bureau of Labor statistics of the United States Department of Labor.

Retail trade in December showed a substantial increase over November, and anthracite and bituminous coal mining reported increased employment. The remaining industrial groups, which include manufacturing, metalliferous mining, quarrying, public utilities, wholesale trade, hotels and canning and preserving, had fewer employes in December.

Employment in manufacturing industries decreased 3.1 per cent in December, 1929, as compared with November, and payroll totals decreased 3.3 per cent.

PIRATE HALL POPULAR

Newest among American supper clubs is Pirate Hall, the intriguing after-theater dancing rendezvous on the lower floor of the William Penn Hotel. Stage celebrities, theater goers and the college crowd adjourn there nightly for supper and dancing in this fanciful retreat.

Pirate Hall was the answer to polite Pittsburgh's want of "a place to go after the show." Its convenient downtown location, its unique appointments and its colorful atmosphere have brought it a quick popularity.

The name suggests romance, adventure and mystery and the setting fulfills the promise. Vivid and richly colored tapestries depicting modernistic pirate scenes hang from the walls. Waiters with fierce mustaches and patched eyes, and costumed in the traditional manner of the buccaneer of old, swagger about with cutlasses hanging from their belts. Treasure chests half buried in sand intrigue the imagination. Pieces of eight are scattered about as carelessly as though a corsair crew had just looted a cache.

Then there is debonair Don Bestor, the Pittsburgh favorite, as master of ceremonies and conductor of his famous 13-piece band. Bestor is a master of rhythm. His peculiarly soft and haunting style of syncopation has penetrated a million homes via KDKA, the Westinghouse radio station, over which his orchestra broadcasts twice daily. It is not too much to say that Don Bestor is an international favorite. His radio fan mail averages 500 letters a day, most of which are requests for radio orchestra selections.

LOWER TREND IN BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The volume of check payments during the week ended January 11 was greater than in either the previous week or the same week of last year, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Receipts of wheat and cotton for the latest available week were lower than for the corresponding week of 1929. Cattle receipts and receipts of hogs were also lower than a year ago. The distribution of goods, as reflected by data on freight-car loading covering the latest reported week, was lower than in the corresponding period of last year.

The general index of wholesale prices was fractionally higher than in the previous week, but was lower than a year ago. Cotton prices continued lower than last year, while the price for iron and steel, showing no material change from the previous week, was lower than last year.

Interest rates on time funds averaged lower than in either the preceding week or the same period of a year ago. Call money rates were likewise lower than in either period. Bank loans and discounts were lower than in the previous week, but were higher than a year ago. Stock prices showed a fractional gain as compared with the previous week, but were lower than a year ago. Bond prices increased fractionally, but were still below the level of last year. Business failures were more numerous than in either the previous week or the same period of 1929.

Building Increase Predicted by Study

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Conclusive evidence that 1930 is to be a banner construction year has just been gathered by the Associated General Contractors of America for presentation at the convention of that organization in New Orleans January 20. This evidence, which constitutes the first statistical indication that the efforts of the National Business Survey conferences are bearing fruit, reveals that the volume of state and municipal bond issues floated during the past month have increased by more than 320 per cent, as compared with the volume of similar bond issues sold in the preceding month.

At no time has there ever appeared so high a percentage of increase. Only once in history have bond issues for one month exceeded this volume and that was during the month of December, 1921, when bonds of this kind were sold to a total of $313,000,000. The large bond issues for that month were followed by the great post war construction boom of 1922 and subsequent years.

BUSES OPERATE ON SCENIC ROUTE

Winter Travel on West Penn Lines More Pleasant Than Trips in Summer

To many, the advent of winter means the end of the season for bus travel. This may seem only natural, but to the initiated, bus travel in the winter is, if anything, more desirable than in summer.

Warm, comfortable coaches with their deep easy chairs, less crowded than they are in summer, present to the traveler luxury comparable in every way to the finest forms of transportation. And the winter bus traveler sees sights that make summer travel seem very commonplace by comparison.

No where is this more true than throughout the far-flung network of the West Penn Motor Coach lines. From Baltimore and Washington the lines press westward following the trails of the pioneers. Almost every foot of the way has its history of struggle between red man and white, or brother and brother.

Across Maryland's rolling countryside the coaches follow the National highway into the foothills of the Alleghenies and the portals of a winter fairyland.

SCENIC ROUTE

Steadily, easily, the big coaches climb toward the summit at Keyser's Ridge, where the National highway reaches nearly 3,000 feet, its highest point between the Atlantic and the Mississippi River. About half of the distance from Baltimore to Pittsburgh is through mountainous country, and here winter works her magic.

Before the fortunate traveler spread ever-changing vistas and panoramas etched in dazzling white. Overhead the blue arch of heaven seems at times almost within reach. Here the forests march steadily away across the mountain side, little different in their vastness and seeming solitude than they were when Washington made his long and weary trip to Fort Duquesne over this very route.

Now the road climbs again. Up it goes amid trees and clearings until it tops the rise and a tremendous panorama bursts upon the view. In every direction as far as the eye can reach rises a jumble of snowy mountains. In such a pass did Braddock meet his fate—perhaps this very one has echoed to the war whoop and the rifle across its snowy loneliness.

BRADDOCK'S GRAVE

On the road marches—now climbing, now descending until past the grove where Braddock sleeps forever beside the path he followed, it wends its way on over Summit Mountain and a dull red glow against the sky proclaims the coke ovens which dot the region.

Seen at dusk there is an unearthly wierdness about the long rows of flame licking into the dark, and gleaming red upon the snow. It is like standing on the brink of the infernal regions.

REACHES PITTSBURGH

On the highway winds until it reaches the town that steel made famous and finds its way amid a maze of chimneys into the industrial capital of America—Pittsburgh.

At Pittsburgh the road halts momentarily and then once more carries its burden of West Penn coaches to Steubenville, Canton, Akron, Toledo and Detroit. But that is different country and deserves a story to itself. For those who have not thrilled to winter coach travel let them ride across the Alleghenies on a winter day.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

By B. E. V. LUTY.

The regular seasonal increase in steel consumption is sluggish in getting under way, but any increase at all is reassuring in view of the fact that during November, when steel production was decreasing sharply, it required no little courage to trust in precedent that steel would grow more active after the turn of the year. The sharp decrease to the end of the year fixed that, developing a level so low that there was little opportunity for anything but an upward swing.

The question now is whether the increase in demand in the last fortnight represents the beginning of an improvement of substantial proportions or is merely recovery from the special pre-inventory dullness. Steel ingot production in the week now ending is estimated at about 65 per cent, which puts the rate back to where it was at the beginning of December, for when official reports showed 69 per cent production for November as a whole and 59 per cent for December it is easy to estimate that the December 1 rate was approximately 65 per cent.

PRESENT RATE FAIR

Recalling that the 85 per cent production of October, which represented practically no influence of the stock market collapse which began on the afternoon of October 23, was regarded as low when it was 15 points under the May rate, it can be seen that there is little chance of an 85 per cent rate being attained in the near future. That would represent one-third increase over the present rate and one must conclude that the present rate is a pretty fair one considering all the circumstances.

More or less as in the last couple months steel production is supported largely by there being heavy seasonal production of rails, unabated shipments to the structural fabricating shops, a very good movement to the farm implement factories and a fair movement to freight car shops. Hardly any line pipe is being produced except for limited operations at Milwaukee and there is very little movement indeed of oil country tubular goods in general. Barge and shipbuilding are at fair rates. Manufactured steel products made for sale to manufacturers and others are sluggish as there is a conservative attitude all down the line.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT

The automobile industry deserves special mention largely because some reports of improvement in that direction are likely to prove misleading. Total production in December was almost insignificant, about 125,000 cars and trucks, United States and Canada, and appeared to be accomplished chiefly by using up stocks of steel and parts. Possibly indeed the production was chiefly for that purpose. A large percentage increase, even a doubling or tripling in the flow of steel from mill to automobile and parts makers would not involve any really large tonnage.

Being that annual findings of steel distribution indicated that about 18 per cent of the steel went to the automobile industry in both 1928 and 1929, whereas automobile production increased 22 per cent to 5,600,000 in 1929, while steel ingot production increased only 9 per cent to 54,700,000 tons in 1929, it is evident that average steel consumption per automobile and truck made decreased about 10 per cent, presumably through there being a larger proportion of production of the cheaper cars.

Thus a poor automobile year in 1930 would represent somewhat less loss to the steel trade than might be supposed. Purely to illustrate proportions and not as a forecast or even guess, automobile production in 1930 at 4,000,000 and steel ingot production at 50,000,000 tons would make 14 per cent of the steel going to the automobile industry, while 4,500,000 automobile production and 45,000,000 tons steel would make about 17½ per cent.

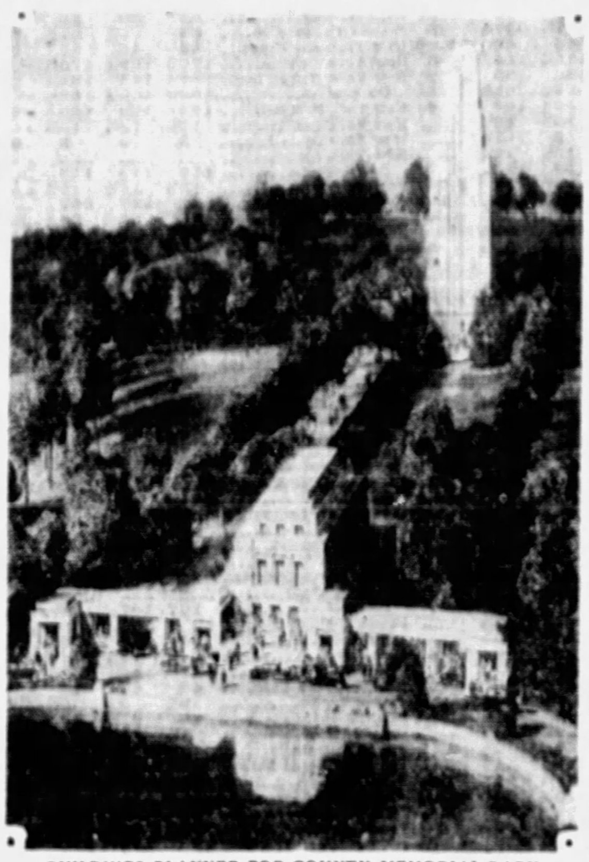
TO BUILD NEW CHAPEL



BUILDINGS PLANNED FOR COUNTY MEMORIAL PARK

NEW CEMETERY PLANNED

Bruce Barton, popular American novelist, recently declared: "The cemeteries of the world cry out man's utter hopelessness in the face of death. Their symbols are pagan and pessimistic; their damp precincts add a final horror to the grief of parting; their upkeep is neglected; their very atmosphere is oppressive. Small wonder that men shun them, and pass by with eyes averted on the other side."

Tombstones and monuments are largely responsible for the ghostly appearance of the old-type cemeteries. Sunken, unkempt and neglected graves give them an air of gloom and depression. All these symbols of death and despair are banished from the park type cemetery. In these new cemeteries there are no unkempt or neglected graves. Every grave has the same beautiful care and attention. Instead of customary tombstones and monuments, simple bronze tablets are used to identify the graves. Anchored in concrete, set flush with the surface of the lawn, their use preserves the park-like appearance of the property. They are artistic, democratic, inexpensive and permanent. The saving between the price of the bronze tablet and the cost of tombstones and monuments is frequently enough to purchase a family lot.

PERMANENT CARE

In the past the old-type cemeteries have required the purchaser of a lot to place an endowment in their hands, if the lot was to have adequate care. This endowment varies from a few hundred to several thousand dollars. The average man, after he has purchased the lot and paid for a tombstone, does not have the money to properly endow its care. As a result his lot does not have the same careful attention as that of his more wealthy neighbor. In the park type cemetery perpetual care is guaranteed on every lot, without additional cost or assessment.

Another attractive feature of the park type cemetery is its beauty, and manner of building. Instead of building piecemeal, over a long period of years, as old-type cemeteries usually do, the park-type cemetery is built as a single unit, all at one time, under the direction of expert landscape engineers and architects. The result is beauty and symetry not possible under the old methods.

NEW PARK

In Pittsburgh, one of these new modern cemeteries, to be known as Allegheny County Memorial Park, is now under construction. It is located on the North Side, at the intersection of Duncan avenue and Thompson Run road, 2,000 feet east of Babcock boulevard in McCandless Township, and consists of 100 acres of rolling land. The company's program calls for the expenditure of $1,500,000 for buildings, improvements and beautification, in addition they are setting up an endowment fund for perpetual care, which, when all of the lots in the park are sold will amount to a minimum of $900,000. The Colonial Trust Company is depository and trustee for the perpetual care fund.

The Memorial Park Company is financing this huge construction program, and the perpetual care fund, through the sale of the lots in the park, instead of waiting for death to send them purchasers for lots, as the old type cemeteries do, the Memorial Park, by a brief extensive sales campaign, sells out its entire property, during the construction period, crowding into a few months the sales that usually require many years. This method of building and marketing a cemetery makes possible extremely low prices.

Knight Life Co. Holds Unique Position

The Knight Life Insurance Company, first and only legal reserve life insurance company that issues industrial (weekly premium) as well as ordinary policies with annual, semi-annual or quarterly payments, with home and executives offices in the city of Pittsburgh, has been located since its entry into the life insurance field on January 7, 1917, in the Jenkins Arcade Building.

A capable staff of agents is constantly available to answer requests and to explain the various forms and plans of in insurance protection that will be available through taking out a policy with this successful and growing company.

Predicts More Use Of Mine Machines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—"The coal industry is definitely committed to complete mine mechanization," says Glenn B. Southward, mechanization engineer of the American Mining Congress. In a report on the mechanization program for 1930 in the January Mining Congress Journal, Mr. Southward says it will cover engineering studies, accident prevention, training and education and cost accounting methods, under the direction of the National Committee on Mechanized Mining operating through the American Mining Congress.

"There is a sufficient number of mines which can produce the entire coal requirements of the country more economically with some form of mechanical loading than with the present hand methods," he says. "The time is approaching when the question a coal operator must decide will be not whether he can afford to mechanize his mine, but whether he can afford not to."

Spang, Chalfant Earns $4.50 on Common

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SPANG, Chalfant and Company, Inc., is expected to report net profit for 1929 equivalent to over $4.50 a share on the 750,000 shares of common stock. This compares with profit of $3,226,188 or $3.34 a share in 1928.

The company had a record October but sales and production slumped in November and December in line with the general trend in the steel industry. Since the beginning of the year production has been showing a gradual improvement but the amount of available business is small.

Prices for most types of steel products have been weak but thus far there has been no serious shading of quotations on either welded pipe or seamless tubes which are the company's finished products.

Cash Shows Gain

IN THE two years since the consolidation with the Standard Seamless Tube Company earnings have been devoted to the improvement of plants, reduction of funded debt and the building up of working capital. As a result of this policy the company is starting 1930 under exceptionally favorable circumstances.

Cash at the end of 1929 amounted to about $2,500,000 against $2,056,048 a year ago. This strong position has been attained after increasing inventories by about $4,000,000 during the past two years to take care of new markets. Most of the additional inventory was used to stock the 90 stores of the Oil Well Supply Company which started to distribute Spang pipe after the merger. The use of additional storage facilities at Memphis to take care of southern business has also added to inventory.

Improvements Made

OPERATIONS in the latter half of 1930 will be helped by the improvements being made at the Etna plant. This work will cost about $500,000 but the changes are expected to pay for themselves within three years through lower costs.

Other changes which have resulted in substantial economies have also been made at the Seamless Tube Plant near Ambridge since the consolidation. As a result of these improvements the company's range of products has been increased and its costs compare favorably with those of all other pipe makers.

Bonds Retired

THE annual report will also show that funded debt has been reduced during the year by a large amount. At the close of 1928 $9,330,000 of the original isue of $10,000,000 of first 5s was outstanding. By October 31 this was reduced to $8,917,000.

The company has $13,750,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock outstanding. The record of quarterly earnings for 1929 shows that preferred dividend requirements for an entire year are usually earned in a single quarter by a large margin.

While current operations of Spang, Chalfant and Company are at a lower rate than a year ago, as are those of all steel companies, officials believe that improvement will be shown which will result in a highly satisfactory volume of business for the final half of the year. They expect operations to be at a fair profit in every month of this year.

Strength in Wages Favorable Factor

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A general absence of wage cutting throughout the United States, assuring a continuance of an enormous volume of purchasing power, was cited today by T. J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corporation as being the most optimistic factor in the immediate outlook.

Addressing a convention of the company's selling forces, he stated that reports from all sections of the country indicated that wage schedules were not being cut and that there was nothing in sight which might be regarded as a threat to the prevailing high wage levels.

Building in Canada Sets High Record

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Building in Canada during 1929 made a new high record for all time. The total of $235,658,000 in building permits exceeded 1928 by 8 per cent and was larger than combined totals for 1920 and 1921. The year 1928 was the previous high record with a figure of $219,105,000.

Leads Course

WILLIAM W. HAGUE

TEACHES CLASS IN SPEAKING

William W. Hague has been selected to conduct the new course in business public speaking which is to be offered by the Pittsburgh Academy, beginning February 13.

The course will consist of 16 classes, which will meet on Thursday evenings at 6:15 o'clock.

Mr. Hague is prominent in Pittsburgh affairs, being president of the Mail Ad Service. He is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and is a consultant on sales and advertising methods. Eight years of interscholastic and intercollegiate debating, together with his experience as an instructor of public speaking at Washington and Jefferson College, qualify Mr. Hague as an expert in this department.

The course aims not at the development of orators, but is intended as a practical course for business men or salesmen who desire some training and experience in the clear and concise expression of their thoughts.

SELLING FLOOD SENDS STOCK LIST OFF

Wide Range of Shares Shows Initial Loss as Pressure Is Renewed

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Selling pressure was renewed at the opening of today's stock market, and initial quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from fractions to more than 2 points. Johns Manville dropped 2¼, Westinghouse Electric 1¾ and American Water Works, General Electric, Union Carbide and Bethlehem Steel yielded a point or so. U. S. Steel common opened at 168½, off ½.

Selling orders increased as trading progressed, with most of the initial declines extended, several of them to 3 points or more, before the end of the first half hour. Overnight business and financial news failed to provide any motive for the selling, but the lack of buying support for leading issues disclosed yesterday led to a resumption of short selling and a liquidation of holdings bought by small speculators earlier in the week.

U. S. Steel common, which sold as high as 173½ on Thursday, fell back to 167⅛. Columbian Carbon, which touched 181 this week, dropped 2 points overnight to 170. American and Foreign Power and Johns Manville also extended their losses to 3 points or more.

Grigsby Grunow was the target of "bear" selling, breaking more than 3 points to a new low at 12⅝, which contrasts with a high of 70 for the present stock. Radio fell back more than a point on unofficial predictions of a poor first quarter report.

Western Union, American Can, General Electric, A. M. Byers, American Water Works, United States Industrial Alcohol, Westinghouse Electric and J. I. Case sold down 2 points or more, with a flock of others, including American Telephone, Fox and Chesapeake and Ohio, losing a point or so.

G. M. TO FORM NEW UNIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—In accordance with a plan approved by stockholders in 1927, General Motors Corporation has acquired something over 1,000,000 shares of its own common stock at a cost of approximately $35,000,000 with the intention of selling it to a second Managers Securities Company to be formed to take place of a similar company now in existence.

The original Managers Securities Company was formed in 1923 for the purpose of permitting men occupying important managerial positions to become partners with stockholders in General Motors Corporation.

Approximately 80 important executives of General Motors are participants in existing Managers Securities Company and while the life of the present company does not expire until 1931 it is planned to terminate it sooner and form a second managers securities company in order to permit a substantially large number of executives to take advantage of its opportunities.

Allegany Crude Oil Runs Up for Year

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 18.—The Derrick says, the runs of crude oil from wells in the Allegany, N. Y., field to all pipe lines for the year 1929 totaled 2,951,992 barrels. This compares with 2,693,385 in 1928 and 1,715,334 in 1927. Daily average runs for 1929 were 41 per cent greater than for 1928.

The increased production in the field, the paper will say, is the result of water pressure on wells applied through the "five spot" drilling method. Observers according to the Derrick predict a daily average production of 9,300 barrels for 1930.

Bank Clearings Continue Lower

Bank clearings for the week continued lower, total at 23 leading cities of the country being $10,745,449,000, a decline of 22.3 per cent from a year ago. New York City clearings of $7,178,000,000 showed a loss of 26.3 per cent, while principal cities outside of New York were 12.7 per cent smaller than last year. Philadelphia, Omaha and Richmond showed slight gains for the week.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

WALL STREET DULL AFTER FLURRY

Market Suffers From Lack Of Violent Clashes; Crash Thins Speculator Ranks

By MERRLYE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—To a public that had grown accustomed to drama and excitement in Wall street, recent markets have proved dull and colorless.

The market in its apathy is suffering from a lack of violent differences of opinion as to economic prospects. The purely emotional speculators were radically reduced in ranks by the earlier drastic liquidation. Those outsiders who retained a stake in the market are a selected group—more analytical and doubtless better informed. Among them there is a stalemate for the present, rather than a definite trend toward optimism or pessimism. As a matter of fact, investors are sitting by, observing the business situation for a clue to the longer term outlook for stocks.

Meantime, such activity as takes place is for the most part the give and take among professional traders. Fluctuations are comparatively narrow, and acrobatic skill is required to make a profit because the traders are operating against others out to achieve precisely the same objective.

BUY TO SELL

The real merchandising function of the speculator is to hold securities from a time when they are unwanted by real investors until such time as investors are demanding them. If traders pick the right stocks to hold at the correct time, they make a merchandising profit. But at present the bulk of the activity consists of buying stocks with the idea of reselling them—perhaps the same day—to other speculators, who are equally canny. Professionals who are members of stock exchange firms avoid the heavy overhead charges which outside traders, subject to peak brokerage commissions, must pay.

Such professional trading involves much running around without any significant redistribution of corporate ownership. It serves to keep floor brokers occupied, and keeps the fires burning on the exchange at interludes when the great outside public has turned its attention to other matters.

Such periods of dull stabilization after a major liquidation are normal and healthy. It would be contrary to financial history to expect dullness to last indefinitely. The impulse on the part of the outside public to re-enter the market will return. The longer the public waits on the sidelines the more capital it will tend to accumulate for investment. The lure which will bring the public back to the market place, in my opinion, will be the spectacle of rising prices.

WATCH TRADE TREND

Analytical investors are carefully observing the business trend. The idea is current among the well informed that if the business recession is to be short lived, stocks at prevailing prices are cheap. On the other hand, if the depression is to drag out through the year, stock prices could drift lower. Thus far, many statisticians have taken the hopeful view that there has been no permanent letdown in the high plane of post-war prosperity—only an interruption temporary in character.

Articulating the viewpoint of those who believe that the downturn in business will be checked in the near future, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, has pointed out:

"We now have a sufficient number of November and December figures and of still more recent weekly reports, to make it quite clear that general business, and particularly industrial activity, are still declining. Retail trade is holding up fairly well, and employment conditions have not yet suffered as much as might have been expected in view of the sharp falling off in industrial production. The three fundamental industries of iron and steel, automobile manufacturing, and building construction have slowed down in more than normal seasonal degree, but all three are preparing to increase their activities in the near future.

"One conclusion which seems justified is that this period of slow times will probably be of only moderate serverity and duration. General business activity has now been declining for seven months, and, according to almost all the well accepted composite curves used to measure such movements, it is now distinctly below its theoretical normal.

AFFECTED BY PARLEY

"It seems reasonable to hazard the opinion that the low turning points for most of these composite indicators will be reached before the declines have continued for a full year, which means before next June."

The arrangement being made at the Hague and at London to organize world peace are of distinct importance to the financial world. International finance rests on credit or mutual confidence among nations, and it is enormously disturbed by the mere fear of war. Steps to assure permenent peace in Europe will improve the old world as a credit risk, and doubtless stimulate the flotation of new loans in this market. The export of capital overseas will quicken the move[illegible] under way to r[illegible] the standard of living a[illegible]

Trade Improving Since Beginning of This Year

By B. C. FORBES

HUBERT PARSON, president of Woolworth's, tells me that their 1930 business "has started out very well, showing a nice increase in sales so far." If this typifies the state of retail trade throughout the country, it is important and encouraging.

CLARENCE DILLON, head of one of America's very largest investment banking houses, is typical of an amazing number of notable figures in the financial and business world in that he had only one son. (Some day I may devote a column to this unique subject.)

Dillon, Junior, who this year will be in charge of Harvard's varsity football team, is the young man who got his daddy to agree to foot the bill for a swell locker building to take the place of Harvard's historic Soldiers' Field locker building, destroyed by fire. Douglas Dillon has exhibited one quality big men prize highly in their offspring; leadership. When our foremost corporations raid the universities each June for the most promising material, they don't rate either scholarship or athletic ability first; they want young men who have proved capable leaders, follows who can inspire loyal teamwork.

How Clarence Dillon first won an important Wall Street partnership is interesting. A very rich man was recommended to try doing some business with Dillon, then a cub bond salesman. The multi-millionaire was astounded when the young man didn't try to sell him something at their first meeting. He refused to suggest a single security, explaining that he couldn't give intelligent counsel until he had first made a complete study of the securities the gentleman already owned and was given a clear understanding of what his prospect wanted to accomplish through his investments.

The prospect, accustomed to importuning by bond salesmen, took young Dillon completely into his confidence—and almost immediately became the firm's largest customer.

That was in Chicago. William A Read, head of the firm, brought Dillon to New York, and when the latter signed his name at the foot of the list of partners, Mr. Read remarked that some day the name would be at the top of the list. And it got there in a few years.

BILL M'INTOSH, publisher of the San Antonio Light, the leading evening newspaper in the biggest city in Texas, while in New York this week expressed impatience with all the pessimistic talk in Wall Street and elsewhere in the metropolis.

"The stock crash has made no difference to our part of the country," he told me. "We are going about our business the same as usual. More building will be done this year than ever before, by a good margin. So many wonderful buildings have been put up since you were there two years ago that you wouldn't know the city. Come and see for yourself."

I hope to, before the year is over.

NOTHING sensational developed at the annual bank meetings held this week. No gigantic new mergers were announced—but some will be by and by. In New York the outstanding feature was the record-breaking profits reported by Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, the largest in the land. Nearly every bank president expressed confidence in early revival of prosperity.

Years ago the writer outspokenly criticized some of the Whelan manipulation of tobacco companies and their stocks. New companies and new issues were put out, one stock would be exchanged for another—always there were things being done which presumably the insiders knew all about but which were rather mystifying to other stockholders. George Whelan was the outstanding member of the family. Wall street always regarded him as a very large-scale speculator. At times his wealth was reputed to be enormous.

The Morrow brothers, who have taken over the Whelan tobacco interests, are never mentioned in connection with stock manipulation. They have the reputation of being very solid business builders.

THE stock market still acts as if the next decisive move is more likely to be upwards than downwards.

Wholesale Prices Decline Slightly

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Wholesale prices decreased one-fifth of 1 per cent in December, as compared with November, according to the Bureau of Labor statistics, Department of Labor. Compared with December a year ago, a decrease of more than 2½ per cent was shown. The price level for 1929 was 1 1-5 per cent lower than in 1928.

Business Failures Fewer for Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Business failures throughout the country this week were 94 less than last week, R. G. Dun & Co. reports, they numbering 638, compared with 732 in the week before. The number this week, however, was [illegible] more than the 523 insolvencies noted for the corresponding

ASK RECEIVER FOR FOX

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A minority stockholders' suit was filed in Federal Court today, asking appointment of a receiver for the Fox Film Corporation, and an injunction restraining William Fox, the Fox Film Corporation and Fox Securities Corporation and several individual defendants from diverting the assets of the Fox Film Corporation to any other corporation or from combining them with the assets of any other corporation.

An injunction also was asked restraining the Fox Securities Corporation from selling, pledging or encumbering any of the assets which have been transferred to the Securities Corporation.

Application was made by Stanley M. Lazarus, counsel for a minority group of Class A stockholders.

Representatives of 233 motion picture houses, following a conference with William Fox yesterday, pledged support to the Fox Securities Corporation $35,000,000 note issue, which is all that is needed at present, according to Mr. Fox.

In reply to the government suit under the Clayton act against the Fox interests, violations of the act is denied and Mr. Fox stated the purchase of Loew's stock will not lessen competition.

The answer also disclosed for the first time that William Fox, president of both corporations, owns only slightly more than 5 per cent of the outstanding stock of Fox Film Corporation and just 10 per cent of that of Fox Theaters Corporation. Mr. Fox had been generally supposed to own the entire voting control of Fox Film Corporation. It was disclosed that of the 100,000 shares of the B stock—the only class that has voting power—Mr. Fox owns only 50,100 shares. The answer affirms that Mr. Fox owns 100 per cent of the voting stock in the theaters corporation.

Regular Remington Rand Dividend Basis Is Expected Soon.

REMINGTON RAND should end 1929 with about $5,000,000 in cash and equivalent while earned surplus December 31, 1929, should also total around $5,000,000. It is reasonable to expect that the common stock will be established on a regular dividend basis at an early date. In addition, the company should have funds remaining to reduce still further the amount of preferred shares outstanding. It seems possible that the March quarterly earnings may approximate $2,000,000, which would be a new record high.

Remington Rand's sales have held up well since the stock market break and it is not improbable the company will show earnings in the December quarter of around $1,700,000 after bond interest, depreciation and taxes or $1 a share on 1,334,457 shares of common outstanding, compared to earnings of 50 cents a share in the December, 1928, quarter, and 78 cents a share in the September 1929, period. This would bring net for the calendar year to better than $6,100,000 or around $3.50 a common share against $2,072,000 or 60 cents a share in the calendar year 1928.

ALTHOUGH United Profit Sharing Corporation recently passed regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share on common stock, earnings last year were not seriously impaired. Management is sanguine over the business outlook. Marvin D. Rae, president, states action was taken by directors to preserve cash for expansion purposes and for purpose of increasing stock of premiums to meet increasing demands of coupon redemptions.

Net income for 1929 will approximate $260,000, equal after 10 per cent cumulative preferred dividends to about $1 a share on 236,000 common shares outstanding, against $309,854, or $1.22 a share, on 236,847 shares in the previous year.

Persistent selling of the utilities developed in the course of yesterday, bringing rather sharp recessions in many of those issues which since the beginning of the week had been noted for their strength in face of uncertain movements elsewhere in the list. Pressure against the group was reported coming principally from the bear crowd which, during the last few sessions, has been hammering such groups as the radio shares, coppers, the motors and some of the merchandising issues. The drive on the power and light stocks was looked upon as a design to facilitate covering in the aforementioned groups. American Foreign Power, Standard Gas, United Gas Improvement and American Water Works bore the brunt of selling which was heaviest about mid-afternoon.

LARGE bear operators who have been prominent on the selling side of the market this week were reported taking advantage of the selling in other parts of the list to cover in certain of their short commitments yesterday. One of the biggest of the group, reported to have put out extensive new lines, and another understood to have been keeping the Florida wires hot recently, were believed to have been particularly active in covering their positions in Montgomery Ward during the morning. This tendency was indicated by the brisk demand for the stock, with several large blocks changing hands around the best levels of the session.

Money brokers reported some time money was actually moving at 4½ per cent. Interest in funds for fixed maturities is said to be greater at the moment than it has been for many weeks past. Until now brokers have been doing little in the way of taking on new time loans, being content to use demand money pending the maturity of fixed term funds taken on at much higher level of interest rate last year. Of course the bulk of three and four months' loans of that character have been worked out, but considerable five and six months' money, taken on when the rate was around 7½ and 8 per cent, has yet to be worked off. It is the indisposition of brokers to take on new time funds as these mature, which accounts for the steady drop in the time loan item in the weekly borrowings figures.

Trust Company Deposits Show Decrease for Fourth Quarter

Total deposits of trust companies in the city of Pittsburgh showed a decrease of $20,612,237 in the final quarter of 1929 but the decline was not sufficient to offset the year's earlier gains which accounted for an increase of $4,786,914 for the full year. Surplus and profits of the combined institutions gained $5,829,836 in the fourth quarter and were up $8,629,848 for the full year.

CONTRAST OF OLD AND NEW FIGHTERS

THE vast changes that time has wrought in the boxing game and in the fortunes of those who follow it as a means of livelihood are brought to attention again by the striking contrast presented by two New York fighters of the past and present whose positions in the ring sport have been oddly similar. Al Singer, the lightweight gloveman known in fistic circles today as the idol of Gotham's Ghetto, has already earned more than $100,000 in the roped square though only 22 years old, is in line for a chance to win the world championship in his class, and in any event may have something close to a half million piled up when he throws away his mitts.

Al Singer.

Three decades ago the idol of that same Ghetto was a featherweight named Joe Bernstein. He, too, fought champions and ranked among the leaders of his division, but his fate has been sorrily different. The purses then were absurdly small as compared with those of this Queensberry era, and there was little chance for the fighters to save anything even if so inclined, which very few of them were. Now comes the news from the metropolis that Bernstein, ill for some time, is in a serious condition and that he and his family are destitute. The two cases show the difference between the old days and the new.

VETERAN fight fans of the Pittsburgh district will readily recall Bernstein, not only because of his former prominence in the ring game, but because he was seen in action here on four occasions. In 1897 he fought an eight-round draw with Jack McClelland, defeated Mark Kerwin in four rounds and Fred Fairman in three, and in 1898 he went 12 rounds to a draw with Louden Campbell. In the latter year he also boxed six-round and eight-round draws with Jimmy Reeder in Altoona.

Bernstein gave Terry McGovern the longest fight in which the latter ever engaged. On April 28, 1899, he went the limit of 25 rounds with the Brooklyn Terror, though losing the decision. It was around that time that McGovern was knocking out all opponents in a round or two. A year later he also stopped Bernstein in seven rounds, but Joe was the only one ever to go as far as 25 rounds with him, though George Monroe came within a round of that distance. Bernstein fought all the other topnotchers of his time—while active from 1894 to 1901—George Dixon, Spike Sullivan, Dave Sullivan, Young Corbett, Oscar Gardner, Eddie Santry, Marty McCue, Tommy Sullivan, Solly Smith, Tim Callahan, Kid Broad, Eddie Lenny, Dave McBride Johnny Lavack, Elwood McClosky, Danny McMahon, Billy Whistler and the rest.

REPORTS from unofficial sources say that the tournament planned for next month to decide the world 18.2 balkline billiard championship has been or will be called off. It is surmised that the National Billiard Association decided to cancel the tourney as the result of a dispute with Jake Schaefer, present title holder.

Jake Schaefer.

Following the lead of Willie Hoppe, who declined to enter the recent championship three-cushion competition when his demands for a better contract were not granted, Schaefer is said to have declared he would not take part in the balkline event unless given more liberal terms.

EVIDENTLY the N. B. A., with this new holdout on its hands, has decided to abandon the proposed tournament altogether rather than to give in to Schaefer or hold a tourney in which the reigning champion would not be among the contestants. A muddled titular situation seems likely to result. If no tourney is held, there will naturally arise a question as to whether Schaefer is to be permitted to retain his crown without defending it or playing for it after the interval fixed by the rules.

IT IS being pointed out that as boxing commissions have declared various fistic thrones vacant the ruling billiard body could do the same with a cue championship and proceed with the title play with Schaefer on the outside.

There is the possibility, however, that the public would take the stand it usually takes in boxing cases—that a champion continues to be such until he voluntarily retires or is defeated in actual competition.

BALLYHOO experts who have undertaken the big contract of making fistic fandom believe that the Sharkey-Scott affair in Miami next month is going to be a real fight instead of a farcical walk-over for Sharkey will have to think up something better than the yarn that Scott is bringing over another new punch if they hope to get anywhere.

In the first place it might be asked what they mean by "another" punch, for Scott never had a punch, in the beginning. In the second place, you can't teach an old dog new tricks, and after his 12 years in the ring no power in the world could change the Briton's style successfully or add anything to what he has already shown. And in the third place they don't rush to the newspapers with any real "secret," such as this has been labeled. It's all the bologna.

Arthur Whitney.

IF IT is true that William F. Baker, owner of the Phillies, turned down a chance to get a pile of money from the Giants for Arthur Whitney, his crack third baseman—though that challenges the belief of any one familiar with Baker's record—the Quaker boss probably almost had an attack of heart failure when he learned that a hunting mishap had nearly ended Whitney's days as a ball player. When a companion fired at a covey while Whitney was within gun range, a bird shot struck Arthur only a half-inch from his right eye. The doctor who removed the shot says it came perilously close to ruining the optic and terminating Whitney's diamond career.

BASKETBALL is following hockey's lead to speed up play and reduce delays and time-killing. The Eastern League has made a start in that direction this season. Previously, when time was called, two minutes were allowed for rest. This has been cut to one minute. If a player has been injured and needs an additional minute, it will be granted by the referee, but if the athlete is unable to continue at the expiration of the second minute a substitute must take his place.

However, this does not mean that the injured player cannot return to the game later. He will be allowed to do so once, if it is desired. To prevent players from killing time in the last five minutes when the score is close, time is deducted by the time-keepers, without notice from the referee, from the instant the ball goes out of bounds until it has been tossed in again.

ANOTHER new provision is that time shall be deducted after every field goal scored, the same as after the calling of every foul, until the ball has been tossed up at center, or, in case of a free throw, after the ball has missed the basket.

Players had made a practice of holding the ball or tossing it into

PITT, CARNEGIE IN ACTION

LOCALS HOPE TO CRACK JINX OF INVADERS

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Frank Frederickson and his ice Pirates will go through a very trying ordeal at Duquesne Garden tonight when they meet Les Patrick's New York Rangers, who have shoved the locals down into the mire of defeat more often than any other club in the National League.

Back in the good old days (December 6, 1928, to be exact) the Bucs amazed all and sundry by holding the Rangers to a 0-0 deadlock here, and a few days later they traveled to New York and battled Patrick's warriors to a 2-2 tie. Since that time Pirate-Ranger meetings have resulted in an unbroken string of New York victories.

This record certainly calls for the old "Indian sign" explanation, for one doesn't have to look back further than 1929 to find that the Bucs now and then have downed the world champion Boston Bruins and other powerful clubs that vanquish the Rangers with some regularity.

MANY LINEUP CHANGES

In an effort to rout the Ranger jinx, build for the future and possibly throw the Pirates into a winning stride, Manager Frederickson has given the local lineup the most radical shakeup it has experienced in Pittsburgh's pro hockey history. Andy Spooner, 19-year-old phenom who never has participated in other than amateur competition but who has all the earmarks of a star goalie, is to guard the Bucco nets tonight; Hib Milks, a forward for 15 years, is to start at left defense, and Bud Jarvis, playing his first season of major league hockey, is to be at left wing on the starting front line.

These shifts, while of a radical nature, are not "experiments." Jarvis, although a rookie, is one of the fastest skaters and best goal getters on the Pittsburgh Club. Milks, never a regular defenseman, has shown much skill at protecting a goal on the many occasions when he has dropped back to take the place of a backfielder rushing to the attack. Spooner won considerable renown as a goaler in the amateur ranks, and he has shown enough class in the practice sessions to win the confidence and high regard of Frederickson.

MacKINNON TO START

MacKinnon, who has been a defense spare since he sprained an ankle, several weeks ago, is to team with Milks at defense in the starting lineup, and Jerry Lowrey, at center, and Harold Darragh, at right wing, will team with Jarvis on the starting front line.

MacKinnon and Milks both are fast starters and dangerous attackers, and as a scoring unit, the Bucs' new backfield should be second to none.

Fans who witness tonight's skirmish probably will see the Rangers fighting harder than ever before. For the first time since they were admitted to the National League, they are finding it a difficult task to clinch a playoff berth. The many fist fights in which they have engaged in recent games is an indication of the strain under which they are laboring.

Tonight's game will be the last to be staged at the Garden until February 1. The probable lineup:

MALCO LOSES, BUT GETS A DRAW

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Tom Malco, of Soho, was lucky again last night. He lost to Vincent Hambright, a long, rangy, broad-shouldered, larruping Filipino, of Cincinnati, in the 10-round windup of the opening show of the new Coliseum arena, but the judges disagreed and the thing wound up with the referee's vote of a draw being the official verdict. The injustice done Malco's opponent was not as bad as in the case of Tommy's bout with Young Saylor at the Moose Temple recently, when Saylor won eight of the 10 rounds, with one even and didn't even get a vote, but it was off the line, nevertheless.

Malco's home is directly across the street from the new arena and his friends were out en masse to root for him and they cheered the draw decision to the echo—and, when your own gang is satisfied with a draw, you must have lost. After the cheering had died away, the remainder of the crowd got in its hooting and booing.

FILIPINO HARD PUNCHER

Not that Malco didn't fight a gallant fight. He did, but Hambright, with his flatfooted stance and wide swings to the body and head, was a bit too much for him. Time after time Hambright lifted Malco off his feet with steaming blows to the midsection and he even had Tommy pulling his tummy back out of the way in anticipation of punches. At other times he rocked Tommy with drives to the head.

Tommy's only chance was to hammer away to the side of the Filipino's body with his right fist in the clinches and occasionally bring up a jolt inside to the jaw, which he did lustily whenever the opportunity was presented. It was a rousing battle, especially in the early rounds, and Hambright looked as if he might stop the Soho pride in the very first ses-

LOCAL TENNIS MOGULS FAVOR OPEN PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

The Pittsburgh Tennis Association met in special winter session at the P. A. A. last evening and signalized the occasion by going to bat wholeheartedly for the latest and most significant of racquet innovations—open competition between amateur and professional players. With enthusiastic acclaim, the gathering of district netmen, representative of 14 clubs and many hundreds of devotees of the sport, unanimously endorsed a resolution proposed by Frank Walton, Stanton Heights delegate, to the effect that President George A. Sawin of the association be instructed to favor any reasonable legislative action in behalf of pro-amateur milling that may be presented at the annual conclave of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in St. Louis next month.

Adoption of the Walton resolution was promptly followed by motion from Carlton Hughes, South Hills star, that a committee be appointed at once to report on the feasibility of a Western Pennsylvania open tournament to be staged in Pittsburgh toward the end of next summer. This proposal was likewise carried without dissent and President Sawin forthwith appointed Walton, Hughes and Frank Smith, Edgewood luminary, to serve as an open tourney group and to bring their findings before the regular yearly gathering of the P. T. A. on April 8.

BOISE CONTENDER

Several skilled professional racquet-wielders are located within the Steel City area at present. Julius Boise, the dean of these performers, has been affiliated with the Allegheny Country Club for a decade or more and would be a serious contender for honors of any open joust to be run off hereabouts. Harold Mortlock, of the P. A. A., would also be heard

Ruth, Al Smith Lose as Bambino Develops Cramps

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—There is no telling how badly Al Smith and Babe Ruth would have beaten their opponents in an 18-hole golf match yesterday if the Babe had not developed cramps.

As it was, Bob Shawkey, new manager of the New York Yankees, and Billy Klem, major league umpire, breezed in with an 8-and-7 win.

Teamed with Ruth, the former New York Governor oozed confidence at first tee. "If you can hit a golf ball like you can a baseball, we're all set," he told the Babe.

To prove his confidence, Al stepped up to the tee and smacked the ball straight down the fairway, following soon after with a 20-foot putt that gave him a par 4 and put the Babe-Al combination 1 up.

It was just as well, for it was the only time during the match that Babe and Al were up.

W. VA. FAIR DATES SET

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Dates for 14 fairs were announced and officers were elected at the concluding sessions of the West Virginia Association of Fairs meeting here yesterday.

Fair dates announced were:

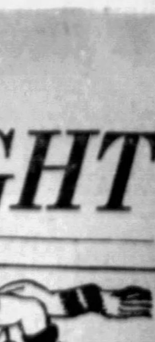
Summers County Fair, Hinton, August 12 to 15; Pocahontas County Fair, Marlinton, August 18 to 23; Greenbrier Valley Fair, Lewisburg, August 25 to 29; Ritchie County Fair, Pennsboro, August 26 to 29; Wyoming County Fair, Pineville, August 26 to 29; Wood County Fair, Parkersburg, August 26 to 29; West Virginia State Fair (Golden Jubilee), Wheeling, August 26 to September 6; Raleigh County Fair, Beckley, September 1 to 6; Fayette County Fair, Oak Hill, September 2 to 6; Lewis County Fair, Weston, September 4 to 6; Logan County Fair, Glenville, September 4 to 11; Mercer County Fair, Princeton, September 9 to 12; Nicholas County Fair, Summerville, September 9 to 13; September 18 to 20; Mason County Fair, Point Pleasant, September 16 to 20; or September 17 to 20; and Kanawha Exposition and 4-H Fair, Charleston, September 29 to October 4.

Dates were not fixed for four fairs. W. L. Talbott, Lewisburg, was elected president of the association, and H. J. Scott, Pennsboro; J. B. Bodenstricker, Ronceverte, and E. S. Cottrill, Charleston, were named vice presidents. Mrs. Bert H. Swarts, Wheeling, was re-elected secretary.

NOTRE DAME AND GROVERS LOCAL FOES

By Jess Carver

The collegiate basket ball situation gives hint of suddenly becoming stricken with apoplexy as the old game offers Pittsburgh two banner attractions for the evening. Close to 10,000 fans are expected to take in the evening's engagements as Pitt tackles Notre Dame in the Stadium and Tech meets Smilin' Bob Thorn's Grove City Crimsons in the Tartan gym.



Les Cohen

A sell-out crowd is assured the Pitt-Irish contest, which, because of its intersectional flavor and the fact that the Panthers will be defending their clear, 10 victory slate, ranks as the feature encounter of the two.

PITT TRAILING

Trailing by one to two in their series of three games, Pitt hopes to even the count by winning tonight's battle. Last year, the Irish secured revenge for a defeat handed them in 1928, and in 1927, they began the argument by tripping Pitt at South Bend. The '28 game was played in the Stadium. Tonight's encounter will be the first of a two game series scheduled for this year, with Pitt slated to appear at South Bend next month.

Coach Carlson will start his regular lineup, using Hyatt and Zehfuss at the forwards, Les Cohen, a very much improved player, at center and Sam Kowallis and Willie Arture at the guards.

TO USE VARSITY

George Keogan, coach of the Irish, will shoot his strong first lineup against Pitt at the outset. Newbold and McCarthy are to hear the opening whistle at the forwards, with De Cook at center and the veteran Eddie Smith and Captain Donovan at the guards.

Having dropped five in a row, losing the fifth last night to Michigan State, the Tartans are extremely anxious to finish on the right end of one, and will strive right manfully to take over the Grovers tonight. The probable lineup:

Carnegie.		Grove City.
Nease (C)	F	Burke-Fegley
Strickfaden	F	Replogle
Merten	C	Reeves
High	G	Ryan
Schumacher-Leon-ard	G	Stavinsky-Ranalin

Referee—Biggs, Bryden.

The Tipoff

Pete Bowen, Pitt track captain, opens his indoor running campaign tonight in New York, facing in an invitation 440-yard special race at the Brooklyn College indoor athletic festal. Pete will run against stars of the caliber of Bernie McCafferty, of Holy Cross; Provencio, Newark A. C. ace, and Ed Blake, of the Boston A. A.

MICHIGAN STATE BEATS CARNEGIE, 35-23

AGGIES TAKE EARLY LEAD, HOLD IT

Michigan State presented a clever five in the Tartan gym last evening, beating Tech 35 to 23. The Aggies used the pivot play Chick Davies' favorite, and with a pair of clever floormen, fast cutters and good shots in Scott and Bob Grove, set up an early lead and maintained it throughout.

At half time the score stood at 17-12, with the Aggies out in front. Play in the second half was ragged on the part of both teams, but Michigan maintained its superiority, with Grove setting the pace with a trio of buckets.

R. Grove, Harder and Scott were the leading scorers for the Aggies, the latter getting three goals, all in the first half and the first named two sinking four apiece.

Capt. George Nease and Merten led the scoring for Tech with three goals each. Tech converted seven out of 14 free throws. Michigan State dropping nine out of 13. The lineup:

Carnegie—23.		Michigan—35.

PITT, CARNEGIE IN ACTION

ebony at Beaver Falls; the Dukes conclude their eastern trip by meeting Colgate at Hamilton, while Penn State ties into West Virginia at Morgantown to complete the evening's cage card as far as this sector is concerned.

There must be a Notre Dame team in town somewhere. How do I know? Ah, Bull Brown has been around scalping tickets.

When Bull Brown asks for a ticket to a basketball game, it's either to see an Irish team play or Johnny Freund referee.

Of the two, I think the latter would be the better card.

Bob Waddell groaned when he heard the Southern California battle song at the U. of C. talking football movies. Other night. And that mine in the corner was Jack Sutherland turning a flip-flop.

COLGATE IN SHAKEUP

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 18. — Capt. George Bonacker is the only regular to survive the shakeup in Colgate's basketball lineup just before the Duquesne game here tonight.

Coach Lloyd Jordan, disappointed by successive defeats at the hands of Fordham and N. Y. U. will start Dowler and Bonacker as forward; Nichols, center; Grynwald and Sullivan, guards. Nichols has started several preceding games as a guard, but, because of his six feet one inch of height, has been shifted to the top position.

W. VA., LIONS MEET

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 18.—For the first time since 1921 West Virginia and Penn State will match skill in basketball when they hook up here tonight. The Lions and the Mountaineers have had four previous court skirmishes and three of them were won by State.

In the preliminary, the University freshmen team will play the Fairmont Collegians, West Virginia independent champions. The probable lineup:

W. VA.		PENN STATE.
M. Gunn (C)	F	Magee
Cubbon	F	Miller or Fry
Herring	C	Hamilton
Ratcliffe	G	Bigley (C)
Foster	G	Saltman or Moss

the crowd to delay the game, and instead of putting it up to the referee to call an offense, the rule to deduct time was adopted.

BECAUSE Roy Worters was missing from the hockey lineup of the New York Americans from the time his left leg was injured on December 17 until the game with the Pirates here a week ago tonight, somebody started a story that the little goalie did not want to play for Manager Lionel Conacher and was merely stalling to force the latter to trade him. Both are former Pirates. When Conacher was asked about the rumor he said he didn't know whether to laugh or become indignant. "Worters was inclined to feel discouraged over his condition and felt none too sure of himself when I sent him in against the Pirates," said the leader of the Americans, "but the great work he did that night and on the following night against Boston restored his self-confidence. After Sunday night's game he came to me in the dressing room and thanked me for the confidence I had shown in him at a time when he had so little confidence in himself. He said it helped him more than I could realize. Any talk about a break between Roy and me is a joke—but there is such a thing as carrying a joke too far, and I'm glad to be able to put the bee on this one."

LOCALS FAVOR OPEN PLAY

from, while Ben Pope, squash racquets instructor of the Keystone A. C., is tennis pro at the famed Nassau Country Club on Long Island each summer and is said to rate highly upon the rectangles. An entry list including, besides this accomplished trio, the best of the countryside's simon-pure array with perhaps a dash of out-of-town talent would unquestionably provide the most interesting competition Pittsburghers have beheld in many a day.

Another important project acted upon by the net session was that of a league for junior players. The idea was received with deep warmth and assurance was immediately given by South Hills, Mt. Lebanon, Edgewood, Westinghouse, Stanton Heights and P. A. A. that teams could undoubtedly be entered by these clubs. Charley Arnold, College Hill veteran, intimated that a Beaver Valley junior loop with squads at College Hill, Beaver Falls Y. M. C. A., Coraopolis, Sewickley, and possibly Rochester and Beaver might be made to function, the winner of laurels in this circuit to engage the Pittsburgh victor in titular post-season battle.

NEW ENTRY OFFERED

Sam Keller, Duke varsity court captain last spring, presented formal application for franchise for a Monongahela Valley outfit to compete in Section Two of the P. T. A. Inter-Club League. The new entry would be at home either at Duquesne, Pa., Library or at Clairton and would include on its roster Keller, Bill Servick, of Alabama University; Ed Baker, Washington-Jeff ace; Bill Snee, Cornell stylist, and various other noted Monongahela racqueters. The Keller petition was cordially received and, upon motion of Ed Seitz, New Clubs committee chairman, the Valley outfit was officially inducted into association membership, thereby raising the Second Division list to six—College Avenue, Minnetonka, Philadelphia Company, Westinghouse Seconds, Wilkinsburg and Monongahela Valley.

A resolution of regret and sympathy was passed to be forwarded to the widow of Dr. Tom Stephens whose death not long ago saddened a multitude of tennis fans throughout the East. Dr. Stephens, one of the well-beloved figures of the Pittsburgh court fraternity, was for many years the dominant factor in West Penn championship milling. Of late he had devoted himself to the task of coaching the net crews of the University of Pittsburgh and his loss is keenly felt among his old-time associates in the game.

PROGRESS REPORTED

Progress was reported on the matter of inter-city team play, as well as upon revival of the long-lapsed P. T. A. annual dinner and the obtaining of an Inter-Club League trophy. Ed Seitz, Whitey McLain, and Russ Unger were designated a committee of three to resume inquiry into possibilities for the long-hoped-for and equally long-deferred Pittsburgh Tennis Club, an organization to be dedicated exclusively to the racquet pastime and to boast facilities for the handling of tournament play upon the largest scale. Lack of a suitable site at a price remotely within reason has retarded effort toward achievement of success in this line for many a day, but optimism prevails strongly among those well qualified to predict and results may be looked for in the not too distant future.

DAILEY TO BE PREXY

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—After two years as president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Samuel H. Collom, of Philadelphia, is to be succeeded at the annual meeting in St. Louis, February 15, by Louis B. Dailey, New York realtor.

Dailey, now vice president and long active in tennis circles, was named for the presidency yesterday by the nominating committee, whose selection virtually amounts to an election.

While never a player of top rank, Dailey has been connected with the game in an administrative capacity since 1921, when he became treasurer of the Metropolitan Lawn Tennis Association. He served successively as secretary and vice president until the disbandment of that association in 1927. He also has been president of the New York and Eastern associations and treasurer of the U. S. L. T. A., as well as vice president.

MALCO LOSES, GETS DRAW

sion, when Tommy stood up under a wild barrage of swings.

Hambright, on his harder hitting, won six of the rounds, the first, third, fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth, with the second even and only the fifth, eighth and tenth going to Malco. Malco weighed 146 pounds and Hambright 144.

Judge Frank Ferris voted for Hambright, Judge Frank Brown for Malco and the referee, Al Grayber, for a draw.

Mickey Duris, Johnstown lightweight, who defeated Johnny Smackey at the Moose Temple a week ago, came back to hand U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, subbing on short notice for Ken Hargraves, also of New Kensington, a bad two-fisted drubbing in the six-round semi-final. He won every round and looked so good that he stole the show. The fans would like to see more of Mickey, judging from the hand they gave him. He weighed 137½ pounds against 133½ for Carpentier.

SPENCER BEATS CHAMBERS

Harry Spencer, formerly of Washington, Pa., and now of Pittsburgh, bested Georgie Chambers, of Lawrenceville, in the second bout of six rounds, a grueling slugfest in which both landed damagingly. Spencer's early lead helped him to gain the decision. Chambers having the edge in the socking after the first two rounds. Spencer weighed 161½ pounds and Chambers 158.

Roy Minteer, of New Castle, 115 pounds, was no match for Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, 113, in the opening bout, which was stopped by Referee Grayber in the fifth round after he had listened to the pleadings of Minteer to permit him to continue after the third round.

Between Rounds

Two 10-round bouts will be staged at McKeesport next Thursday night, Eddie Hanlon, of the Hill, and Jimmy Rosen, of Buffalo, will clash in one of them.

The Johnny Mallow-Tony Herrera match, planned for McKeesport January 30, is off. Mallow has accepted a better offer for the Eddie match at Erie, Mich. Promoter McGlynn now is on the lookout for a new opponent for Tony.

The Maple Stitch-Joey Goodman windup for next Friday night, announced at the Coliseum last night, was well received.

Billy Jones, local Negro light-heavyweight boxer, who never has shown to waste in his home town, but has been [illegible] great guns in the East will appear in bouts at New Castle and McKeesport shortly if present plans materialize. New Castle weekly hops out Promoter Ed Smith and Promoter Joe McGlynn of McKeesport is trying to get an opponent for him for Tuesday's ring card. LOCAL COURT TEAMS BUSY TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

Eight attractive league games head the independent basketball schedule tonight, two of which are listed for the followers of the Allegheny County loop. In that circuit the Sianos are the attraction of the Homestead Ackermans in Homestead, and the Allentown Club appears at Charleroi to oppose the Lions.

Three battles are carded in the West Penn League, winding up the first-half schedule. Penn Five plays at Edgewood, the Ray Schneiders at Kingsley House, and the South Side Falcons at Community House.

St. Wendelin's plays at St. Henry's and St. Joseph's at St. John's in the South Side Catholic Lyceum League.

In the Saxon Inter-State League the Homestead Y. M. C. A. entertains Salem, O. Y. M. C. A.

The Homestead Ackerman quintet found Allentown a tough County League foe last night, Moon Klinzing's field goal in the closing 60 seconds accounting for his team's 42-41 victory.

Irene Kaufmann Settlement defeated Equitable Life 38 to 24, in the Central League, and the Penn Five defeated Kingsley House, '22 to 29, in the West Penn loop.

SHIRES, LANDIS MEET

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires today had a date to tell all to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball. He was ready to report to Comiskey Park but left for Washington that he will not further waste the baseball training time and concentrate on the business of playing first base if the commissioner desires.

TOURNEY DATES SET

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Athletic Director Dorchet Lawrence of Loyola University, today refused rumors that the National Catholic Basketball tournament would be abolished by raising March 19 to 22, inclusive, as the dates for the seventh championship event.

RAY ALVIS RESIGNS

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Ray C. Alvis, matchmaker for Jack Dempsey, resigned to resume the management of boxers. He joined the former world heavyweight champion when he began promoting in the Coliseum last October. Dempsey has not picked Alvis' successor.

World 10-Mile Auto Mark Is Lowered

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Norman Smith, of Australia, bettered the world automobile straight-away record for 10 miles on North Auckland Beach yesterday. He covered the distance in 4 minutes 2 1-5 seconds, an average speed of 148.637 miles an hour.

Available records say the present world straight-away auto record for 10 miles is 4:09:31, an average of 148.409 miles an hour. The record was set by Ralph De Palma, at Daytona Beach, February 16, 1919.

THREE SOCCER TILTS TODAY

TODAY'S GAMES.

WEST PENN CUP.

BEAVER VALLEY LEAGUE.

New Castle at Ambridge.
Beaver Falls at Midland.

By TOM BIRKS.

Three games are listed for district soccerites this afternoon, two of which will be staged in the Beaver Valley League. Local fans will be interested in the semi-final game at Westinghouse High School Field, where the Celtics and German Sport Club resume their unfinished game of New Year's Day.

This looms as one of the best games served for soccer fans in the cup race. The Celtics have a great team this season. The German Sport Club, having gotten away from its original policy of only having German Club players on the squad, have acquired dash and brilliance in controlling the ball.

The speedy stadium ground should help the Germans more than the Celtics, and there is reason to feel a fast game will ensue.

The Celtics are of the Heidelberg go-ahead type. Little time is wasted trying to play fancy football for the edification of the fans. The whole team seems to realize that getting goals wins football games. Barrett is one of the best center-forwards in the district, and in Neiderbocker will find a player just as good opposing him. Robinson at fullback will match his kicks with Frey, the German ace, so that some real defensive football will be on tap.

P. A. A. Mermen Meet Baltimore Tonight

The members of the P. A. A. swimming team will act as hosts to the Baltimore Central Y. M. C. A. in an inter-city meet in the P. A. A. pool tonight.

While little has been heard about the Baltimore team in this city, the Maryland swimmers are said to be exceptionally strong in fancy diving. The locals expect to meet tough competition tonight.

Zuppke Defends Football From Gin

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Those 70,000 souls who bring gin bottles to football games would have their bottles wherever they happened to be on Saturday afternoon," is Coach Robert Zuppke's answer to the charge that college football brings a drinking orgy among fans.

"I don't see why football should be blamed for this drinking," Zuppke, University of Illinois football coach, told the Executives' Club here.

Weather Conditions.

There was a rapid change in barometric pressure distribution during the last 24 hours. The Northwest high is now centered over Southern Texas and extends northeastward over the central valleys, causing a decided drop in temperature throughout the central valleys and the lake region. At Dallas, Tex., and Shreveport, La., the temperature is two degrees below zero this morning, the lowest on record for those places. At Galveston the temperature is 12 above, and at Corpus Christi 16. Over the Dakotas, the Rocky Mountain states and the Canadian Northwest the temperatures are rising. The precipitation was light, except east of the Appalachian Mountains, where there was moderately heavy rain in the south and heavy snowfall in Pennsylvania.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 6.9 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.9; Pittsburgh 15.8; Dam No. 4, 13.7; Dam No. 8, 10.3; Dam No. 9, 15.9, and Dam No. 12, 7.6 feet over dam.

WANER AILMENT IS PROBED

In an attempt to learn the cause of periodical attacks of stomach trouble, Lloyd Waner, star centerfielder of the Pirates, is undergoing X-ray examination at the Allegheny General Hospital. Lloyd was scheduled to have another X-ray picture taken today after having undergone similar examinations yesterday.

The attending physicians were somewhat concerned over the condition of the appendix of the little outfielder. They desire to make a close examination of this organ with a view of ascertaining whether the player's attacks may be caused from that section of the body.

On several occasions, Lloyd has been treated by Dr. William L. Marks, Pirate physician, who advised the athlete to submit to the X-ray examination.

Lloyd has been making his home with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lydia Snyder, Oakland avenue. He and Mrs. Waner came from the Oklahoma home of the outfielder for a holiday visit with Mrs. Waner's mother. He had intended leaving this week, but owing to his present attack his departure has been indefinitely postponed.

BENGOUGH SIGNS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The first 1930 contract received by the New York Yankees was brought to the baseball club officials by the signer in person. Benny Bengough escorted the signed document to New York from Niagara Falls.

Hoyt Joins Ruth As Yankee Holdout

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Babe Ruth had a rival today in his holdout campaign against the New York Yankees as Waite Hoyt, Yankee hurler, returned his contract to the New York Americans without signing it. Hoyt was said to have demanded a big increase in pay.

Hoyt's 1929 pitching record showed 10 wins and nine defeats. This, barring the year 1925, was the worst Hoyt did in nine years with the Yanks.

OBITUARY

Roberts Funeral.

Funeral services for Earl G. Roberts, 43, were to be held this afternoon at the home of his parents, Police Sergt. and Mrs. Richard W. Roberts, of Maplewood avenue, Crafton. Mr. Roberts was a lifelong resident of Crafton, and was for many years an employe of the city offices of the Pittsburgh Coal Company until ill health forced him to resign. Besides his parents he leaves a brother, Richard Roberts, and two sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Bewley, of Crafton, and Mrs. Margaret Bates, of California.

Martin J. Dowling.

Martin J. Dowling, 76, former general superintendent of the South Side plant of the Carnegie Steel Company, died yesterday in his home at 4154 Bigelow boulevard. He was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and retired from business several years ago. He was president of the church committee of St. Paul's Cathedral. He leaves four sons, J. W. Dowling, Raymond Dowling, J. Malcolm Dowling and Eugene Dowling, and four daughters, Sister Alice and Sister Austin, both of Mt. Mercy Academy; Miss Ursula Dowling, and Mrs. Greer McIlvain.

Funeral of Mrs. Marcus.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bessie Marcus, mother of Representative Joseph C. Marcus, who died yesterday in her home at 6606 Dalzell place, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the home with Rabbi Rose, of the Beth Shalom Synagogue, in charge. Burial will be in the McKees Rocks Cemetery. Mrs. Marcus was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and was the widow of Reuben Marcus. Besides her son, she leaves a daughter, Miss Fannie Marcus and a brother, Lee Grossman, of Pittsburgh.

Funeral of George Sheppard.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for George Sheppard, 62, who died Wednesday at the home of his son, Dr. Thomas T. Sheppard, 5554 Wilkins avenue. The Rev. Dr. William R. Farmer, of the Western Theological Seminary, officiated. Mr. Sheppard was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and was at one time state bank examiner. He also served as city clerk for eight years.

Cooper Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara Cooper, 69, who died Friday, will be held at the home, 6325 Waldron street, at 1 p. m. tomorrow. She leaves three sons, Charles L., of St. Louis; Alexander, of Pittsburgh, and Samuel Cooper, of Memphis, Tenn., and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Estrin, of New York, and Mrs. Mollie Oshrey, of Pittsburgh.

Davis to Talk on Byrd Broadcast Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

SECRETARY of Labor James J. Davis will speak over KDKA at 11:30 tonight in a special Welsh program directed to Rear-Admiral Byrd's expedition in the Antarctic. The Braddock Male Chorus and Rotary Male Quartet will sing.

Once again radio fans will have the opportunity of listening to the beautiful voice of Rosa Raisa, who will play the leading role in "The Jewess" through KDKA at 10.

"Girl of the Golden West," a Puccini opera, will come to us through WCAE from 7 until 8 o'clock. Pasquale Amato will play the lead. He will be supported by Frances Alda and Mario Chamlee. Alois Havrilla will be the narrator.

A Fireman's Ball on WJAS at 8:30 has aroused our curiosity as has the Nit Wit sketch of a horse race over the same station at 9 o'clock.

The Fuller Man will make his debut as a Saturday feature through KDKA at 7:30. Elen Glen Campbell, the "Scotch Nightingale," will be heard as the guest artist on Land o' Heather, a 9:30 attraction from KQV.

Those who failed to vote in the Pittsburgh Radio Poll last Sunday will be given an opportunity tomorrow when the regular ballot will be printed in the radio section. The voting has been exceptionally heavy. Many calls were received this week asking that the ballot be printed again.

DAILY TRUE STORY :-: THE HOME FOLKS

DONALD d'ALTON sat in his favorite corner of his favorite club, the Thespis, a picture of contentment and more—of satisfied ego.

Not that he was swell-headed. He had outgrown as much of that as a really successful actor may. No one denies, least of all Donald d'Alton himself, that in those days when real success first came to him, he was all that "swell head" implies.

Not so much need of that now. He had come back to earth and was thoroughly well liked by the brothers of his profession.

"Sure is, but he deserves it. he hasn't had more than a few weeks' vacation in as many years," Felton replied.

Hugh Evans came down from his room at the club for his breakfast—it was shortly after noon. Hugh and Donald had long been friends.

"How about it, Don—breakfast?" Hugh asked.

"Right," said Donald and he joined Hugh in the big dining-room. After they were seated Donald explained. "I had breakfast at ten in my apartment, but I'll have coffee with you, Hugh, and a bit of a chat."

"I suppose it's a trip for you—Canadian Rockies, Hawaii and a tour through the Canal and back to the old burg again—I'll be biting my nails in envy all Summer," and Hugh Evans laughed.

"Wanneska? That might be in Norway or Siberia."

"But it happens to be in the northern part of Minnesota," Donald explained, with a laugh.

"Ah, Isaak Walton stuff—didn't know you were a crank on fishing——"

"Home—that's the word. I'm going to see the home folks. There's a father and mother, brother and sister all within the confines of Wanneska and it has been ten years since I have seen one of them."

Few Home Ties

Hugh looked at Donald with admiration and a bit of wistfulness. "Seems as though you had more than your share of good fortune, Old Man—your great success and also such home ties. My 'ties' consist of one married sister and a nephew, out in Oregon somewhere. I've never seen her husband or the kid — send gifts every holiday and write about twice a year." Hugh finished his grapefruit.

"How come you let ten years pass without going to see the home folks, Don?"

"Well, the first five years after I left home, I was either with stock or on the road with shows that mostly flopped, and I couldn't afford it. The other five years I have been selfish, too busy making the most of my successes."

"This Wannie—Wannie—"

"Wanneska, Hugh."

"This Wanneska, I suppose, is a hick village." Donald d'Alton nodded.

Hugh grinned. "I can see you, arriving like royalty, awesome luggage, your valet—togged to the utmost—Gad, how they'll gape and gasp!"

Donald d'Alton shook his head and laughed.

"Remember Billy de Lange?" he asked.

"Well, he had me in stitches here one night a few years ago, telling me about his visit back home—a place he called Hardscrabble. I'll never forget it."

D'Alton laughed outright at his memories. Evans waited for him to continue.

"Billy never forgot that he was a matinee-idol type of success. He admitted to me that his name was William D. Lang—and of course you know my name, when I left home, was Donald D. Alton. Well, sir, Billy decided to go home and give everyone a treat. His father was a merchant—ran the only butcher shop in the village. He had a family much like mine, I remember, father, mother and brother, but no sister. Billy remembered that he once played a tuba in the Hardscrabble Silver Cornet Band. He wrote to his old friend, the band-leader, and gave him the date and hour of his coming. He wrote to the editor of the Hardscrabble Weekly about it, and to a dozen others as well as to his folks."

"That would be like Billy—he never forgot the old spot nor the press—working up a big reception, wasn't he?"

Donald d'Alton nodded and grinned.

None to Greet Him

"When he got home there was no band to greet him—no soul in sight save old Jim Turner, station master, baggage master, ticket seller and telegrapher. Jim had held down that job for 30 years. Billy made no bones of telling me how chagrined he was—so he just got Jim to have the garage man send up his flivver—for his four bags, bag of golf sticks, bundle of canes, hat box and other stuff. Billy swapped his train cap for his pearl fedora and with his yellow gloves, pearl spats and malacca stick he strolled homeward. The worst jolt he got was from old Jim, who said, when Billy asked him if he knew him: 'Sure do. You're Joe Lang's boy, Bill and you ain't changed a mite.'

"Well, Billy's father shook hands with him and said: 'What are you wearin' gloves in the summer for?' Billy's mother gave him a hug and called him 'Willie' while his older brother said: 'Hello, Kid. I s'pose you've come home to live often 'us all summer.'"

"Billy said he answered that he was just on for a visit and his older brother told him he'd have to help in the market as he was old enough to earn his own living. That made Billy sore, so he showed them some bank books and some of his diamonds and a book of press clippings. He thought they would make a hit. It didn't seem to awe them for a cent—his older brother promptly suggested that he give them the cash to put up a new market building and take a third interest in the meat business. 'With all that money you don't want to fritter around at play-actin no more,' the big brother said.

"Well, he hinted to his mother that he had sort of expected the band boys to meet him, but she told him the band never went out for anything unless it was important, like a soldier's funeral or the county fair. 'And Willie,' she said to him, 'we ain't never said much about you bein' a play-actor—taint nothing for us Langs to be proud of, you know.'"

"Billy made them all some nice presents and left after four days, to go on to the coast and finish his vacation. He got the local weekly paper later and read what it had to say about him—I can quote all of it now—" Donald paused to chuckle and Hugh paused to listen, letting his shirred eggs get cold.

Puff for Bill

"The Hardscrabble Weekly said of that really noted actor, William de Lange: 'Bill Lang, who has been visiting his folks here—Lang, the butcher—has gone back to New York, where he has a pretty steady job in a theater.' How's that, Hugh?"

Both of them enjoyed it. Donald the telling of it as much as Hugh the hearing.

"Well, I suppose you are planning to go back to this Winni—what's-its-name home yours and see how it works out, are you?" Hugh asked.

"I wouldn't do it quite that way, even if Billy hadn't told me of his experience. My folks know of my success, and as they are as sweet and simple as they are naturally intelligent, it would pain and disgust them to have me come on with a valet and put on a lot of dog. Know my plan, Hugh?"

"I'm going out there with one little suitcase. I shall wear an old suit of tweeds. I shall tote no cane or spats or fancy luggage. You see I want to just slip back into the home again as one of them—not as one who had broken away and become wealthier and more famous and different. I don't want mother and the rest to feel that the son who left has changed utterly and gone forever—I want all of them to feel, 'Well, good old Don is back, same chap as ever.'"

"By gad, Don—that's like you," he cried; "that's what makes you a born actor—you do the natural thing, not the palpably dramatic. I sure would like to be there, and see you slide quietly into your home town, trot meekly down the old village street and slip in through the side door as if you had been there all the time and only went to the postoffice for the weekly paper."

"Something like that, Hugh—and so far as I am concerned no notice of my home-coming will get to the office of the weekly paper."

They chatted of other things then, and Hugh bid his friend a warm and sincere adieu, wishing him all happiness when he went back to see the home folks in that natural, filial manner.

Donald d'Alton did exactly as he had outlined to his friend, Hugh Evans. He even forbade his publicity man to make big news of it.

"A paragraph, Leahy," he said to his publicity man, "that's all—just say I have gone to my native home out in the Middle West, and don't name the town or State."

On the day following the night the long-run success closed, the famous actor, Donald d'Alton, slipped from his quarters into a taxi. He carried one plain black leather suit case. He wore a much-used gray tweed suit and carried an indifferent top coat over his arm. His gray cap was also considerably battered—it was a cap he had worn for a season in one of the parts he had played, and close inspection would have shown grease paint around the edges.

Of course he traveled first class compartment to himself, but at Starr Junction, on his third day of traveling, he changed to a local that went to, and beyond, Wanneska. He recognized the scenery after a while.

Place Changed

But he didn't recognize the old pasture. There was a long low building—a clubhouse—the pasture had become a beautiful golf course!

And the Wanneska depot—squat and green and ugly—was gone. In its place a granite structure! Three taxis were lined up—a score of smart cars were waiting for the train—the square was cemented instead of paved with cobblestones, and there were shrubs and a fountain.

Donald decided to walk. A glance down Main street showed mostly new buildings. He turned down Academy street and then up Maple street—what the devil had become of his home—ah, a new place—a corking fine place, probably his folks had sold and moved. He had never been one for correspondence, a letter or so a year and that was all.

"Well, well—why didn't you let us know, Don?" And the old man shook his hand, slapped him on the back and took him into a den where there was modernistic furniture and smokes and liquors.

"Where's mother?" Don asked.

"Ought to be, he's vice president of my bank, and Ted owns the new theater and department store block—he's in real estate up to his neck, too bad he's over to the Silver Club today playing polo. Come on, son, hop into my auto and we'll spin out and see your mother—but wait—" His father seemed distressed. "Er—haven't you something a little—er—more—well, sporty to wear? If not, you take some money and go down to the store and get outfitted—"

Donald sat down and laughed. Then he wrote.

"Pack all my sport clothes, golf clubs, evening clothes and other necessities for fashionable resort. You come on at once by train and have Wilks drive my auto out here."

"A wire to my valet—I'm not going to shame my beloved old-fashioned home folks, Dad!"

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

What Mad Prank Is in Mary's Mind, Wonders Madge

"If my peremptory call Mary halted, then turned obediently but reluctantly and came back to me.

"I must know what you're going to do," I reiterated. "If you're planning to stage the same devotion to Prince Georges that——"

"Then I must tell you that you will be defeating the object for which I assume you are working," I finished, ignoring her flippancy.

"Said object being the painless elimination of little Mary from the alleged mind of the Prince and the substitution therein of Olina's image. That's the ticket, Auntie Madge, although I'm here to tell you that I don't care a tweet, tweet about where Olina's image settles, if Noel only trains this John Barrymore howitzer on me instead of her. But you needn't worry about your devoted young niece. She knows her creamed cauliflower better than to hand George the 'oh! how I love you' stuff. He'd tire of it in short order, but he's so chivalrous that he never, never would throw me to the buzzards as I'm banking he'll want to do when I get through with the stunt I'm planning. And please don't make me tell you now what it is. I don't know all of it myself yet. I'll have to improvise as I go along, but if I have to rehearse it first all the full, fine, fruity flavor just listen to that one—will beat it for parts unknown. But the general idea of the stunt is like the one I handed him yesterday. Oh! boy! did you see his face then? If there'd been a guillotine handy I wouldn't have given two cents for my head. He sure was ready to sing 'So Long Mary' only not the way it was written. More like 'Way Down East.'"

She put up her hands, palms outward, and thrust them forward in a burlesqued gesture of banishment. Then she put her arms akimbo and did a dance step. Her whole body was vibrant with excitement, and I knew that she must be calmed down before she went back to the room where the others were.

He may have been ready to sing it when you finished your little speech. I said, playing for time, "but then Olina——" I hesitated, and Mary promptly finished the sentence.

"Got my goat?" she suggested with an impish smile. "Yes, your Honor, she did do that trifling thing. I couldn't let her get away with that—'You-worm-of-the-dust—' stuff, could I? I just naturally had to show the poor minnow how much her spiel counted with her death old royal pal, Georgie, when I didn't choose to let it register. That regal stuff annexes my nanny every time."

"Don't look so scared," she said impishly. "You've just given me a coat of mail against Olina and all her relations. You just watch me, Auntie Madge, while I hand my royal fiance the works. He won't turn me down flat, he's too chivalrous to jilt a dame, but he'll be so disillusioned that the final work of tearing our two hearts asunder will be cherry pie."

"But you realize, don't you, that if you talk to Georges as you did yesterday, Olina is going to take the same attitude that she did then?"

"Only worse and more of it," Mary amended. "But see if I care! She took me by surprise yesterday, and then I didn't know about Noel. But now that I know why he's doing that 'heavy devoted' to Olina, and that he isn't really in love with her, I shan't mind her half as much as I would a mosquito. I shan't give her even a tiny slap when she stings. And let me tell you I've got something up my sleeve that'll be a sure cure for Georgie Porgie if all the rest of the nostrums fail."

She nodded her head emphatically, looked at me with such bright mischief in her eyes that the anxiety, banished by her declaration of immunity to Olina's strictures, came back to me. What madcap prank was in her mind?

"Look here, Auntie Madge," she said. "I'll promise you I won't open my mouth unless you are in the room. Then you can be ready to turn down your thumbs at any stage of the game. But I want you to get Uncle Dicky and Mrs. Underwood out of the room. And then I want you to go back to that corner table with your work. After a few minutes Olina and Georges and Noel will have forgotten you're there. Then I'll run up the asbestos curtain, but if you love me, don't—don't—crab my style—unless—of course—you feel that the world will come to an end at 5 o'clock if you don't flag me. But you don't feel that way, do you, Auntie Madge?"

Horoscopes

Sunday, January 19

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds token of the most propitious state of affairs in spite of certain tendencies to unrest and the possibilities of a definite measure of setback or postponement. With firm resolution and resistance to obstacles there is splendid promise of advancement, preferment and prosperity. Contracts and writings should flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great progress and advancement if they will persist against delays and obstacles as well as a tendency to make rash and precipitate change or removals. New contracts and affiliations are in sight which should bring recognition or favors from those in places of authority or position.

A child born on this day should be versatile, clever and ambitious and should attain to high places in spite of much opposition and obstacle. It may be restless and fond of change, which, however, may bring it in line with a public position in life.

Monday, January 20

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for some peculiar relations or intrigues of a private nature, in which writings or letters may hold a menacing position. The personal affairs may assume a sensational or irregular angle. Matters generally should not be put in jeopardy by a proclivity to rash and tempestuous words and speech. Calm self-control may meet and overcome disaster.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for complete discretion and of control. The personal affairs are under a menace of irregular and intriguing situations, with the augury of letters or writings contributing to sensational developments.

A child born on this day should be given strict training and discipline in self-control in conduct and speech lest it invite many peculiar situations in life. Its personal career may have spectacular angles, with strategy and intrigues imminent.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Golf-Widowologues

"A MAN has no respect for a woman's dyed hair any more!" sighed Mrs. Green bitterly, as she gathered up the cards and rang for tea.

* * *

* * *

"TRYING, you mean," corrected Mrs. Green. "That impudent young scapegrace, Bob Hazard, actually had the audacity to—to—make a pass—"

* * *

"What?" cried Mrs. Divot mirthfully. Not Baby Bobby—just home from college? How on earth did you turn the child down?"

* * *

"I don't know that he IS 'down'," answered Mrs. Green, sadly, "and he's certainly not 'OUT!' Their nerve is castiron these days, and their vanity is bullet-proof. Nothing you can say ruffles their complacency or feazes their self-assurance! They simply won't believe that a married woman actually loves her own husband. It's too quaint!

* * *

"You may succeed in convincing a man that you won't be kissed or that you can't be kissed—but never in convincing him that you don't WANT to be kissed! You may persuade him that you have a strong will—but never that you won't have a 'weak moment.'

* * *

"If you squelch his affectionate gesture he is not hurt—he is merely astonished that you could be so blind to your golden opportunity. It never occurs to him that you may be a trifle fastidious in your tastes, and may actually PREFER your own husband's kisses. He is just amazed at your marvelous 'self-control.'

* * *

"You may convince him that his attempts at petting are wasted—but you can never make him believe that you are not FLATTERED by them. You may persuade him that you are 'not that kind of a girl'—but, never that he is not YOUR kind of a man.

* * *

* * *

"Oh, don't be so hard on them!" laughed Mrs. Divot good-naturedly. "When you think of all the encouragement they receive from the flirtatious married women who clutter up the country clubs these days, you can't blame the men for thinking themselves irresistible."

* * *

"Perhaps not," admitted Mrs. Green grudgingly. "But they might at least be a trifle discriminating. They MIGHT give a woman credit for being devoted to her husband until she proves herself otherwise!"

* * *

"They might!" agreed Mrs. Divot. "But they DON'T, any more! They've been too spoiled. They seem to regard every woman, married or single, as 'nobody's darling'—and if she can't be kissed they think she ought to be psychoanalyzed or sent to a sanitarium for observation. Life, these days, is just one long struggle to preserve your dignity, your ideals and your marcel wave."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Right Food for Sick Will Speed Recovery

MANY persons write to ask about the diet for the sick. Perhaps a few suggestions along this line will not be amiss.

The doctor will order a particular form of diet. But he may be so busy he forgets to give you details. Perhaps this grouping of diets will help:

DR. COPELAND

The liquid diet: This consists of a variety of broths of chicken, lamb, beef, oysters and clams. Gruels, milk, buttermilk and malted milk are included. Likewise, egg-nogs with various flavors, cream soups, koumiss, orange and grape juice are in this group, as are vegetable broths, cocoa and, in some cases, tea and coffee.

The soft diet: In connection with the liquid, one could serve soft cooked eggs, milk toast, custards and junket and tapioca pudding. Also we may include mashed banana or apple beaten with the white of egg, floating island, rice pudding, ices, cooked cereals, tomato juice or soup, almost any vegetable puree, jellied broths, fruit juices, prune whip and stewed fruits.

The semi-soft diet: This includes both the soft and liquid diets as given, together with solid foods which can be easily digested. It embraces tender chicken, oysters, scraped broiled beef, at the doctor's discretion, squab. Any of the cereals may be used, and also creamed and mashed carrots, spinach, asparagus, celery, peas, beets and baked potatoes. It might possibly include crisp bacon, ice cream, baked apples and souffle.

The light diet: This might include all foods we have mentioned, with other vegetables added, with the exception of cabbage, dried peas or dried beans. It would include fish, lamb, sweetbreads, steak, tongue with light desserts.

The special diet: This should be taken charge of by your physician. Where such food is required he will write out the details.

For the sick person, none but the best of foods should be served, and cleanliness in preparing them should be strictly observed. Serve small portions on the prettiest china in the house. It will often work wonders in the invalid's appetite, if he can eat at all. Savory dishes and tinkling china ought to gain your invalid's interest.

All the dishes may be made most delicate and attractive. It is important to do away with the monotony so often experienced in the meals of the invalid. Desserts both colorful and nourishing can be frozen in the electric refrigerator, or in your own freezer, and are refreshing for the invalid if the doctor approves.

These are a few suggestions in a field where the opportunity for discussion is almost unlimited. It takes time and effort to supply the special dishes a sick person can eat. But such feeding hastens recovery.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Position of the Table Knife

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly inform me as to whether a table knife resting on the plate should have the sharp side turned in or out?

READER.

THE sharp edge of the knife should be turned in toward the plate. This, too, should be the position of the knives as they are placed on the table when the table is being set.

A Courtesy Not Taken for Granted

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

MARY LOU.

MOST assuredly she should. A person should thank another for a courtesy, no matter how slight. Any woman who takes for granted any courtesy and does not thank for it is not well bred.

Deserving of the Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married. My parents are dead and I have been living with a married sister for about five years. Don't you think I should have my brother-in-law (who has acted as a father in this time) give me away? I have brothers but I do not see them very often.

READER.

UNDER these circumstances, since your brother-in-law has been so especially kind and "fatherly" to you, and since you do not see much of your brothers, I think that it would be especially gracious and appropriate of you to invite your brother-in-law (in-law seems a very cold word in this case, doesn't it?) to give you in marriage. Surely he has in large measure deserved this honor.

LOVEJOY

:: By BEATRICE BURTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Happiness and love have remained steadfastly with Tom and Lovejoy Nicholson during their first year of married life. The arrival of Tom, Jr., brought more joy to the little green bungalow. Then comes Mrs. Aline Alderson, rich but childless neighbor, to sow the first seeds of discontent. When Tom refuses to go to the Aldersons' New Year's party, Lovejoy is incensed. Their first quarrel is patched up and they go to the party. Mrs. Alderson's husband is elderly. Lovejoy is glad she has Tom who has youth and looks if not money. When Tom makes a big sale of bonds to Alderson, Lovejoy plans on more freedom. Mrs. Alderson calls to use the phone. Lovejoy overhears the conversation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

"HELLO—hello, Jack!" Aline's voice came to her clearly through the closed doors of the little jerry-built house.

"Yes, I had the call switched over here to my neighbor's house," it ran on, high and musical. "I thought it was safer than talking at home."

Safer! . . . Lovejoy, her arms deep in dishwater, gave a start. Why she was talking to some man whom she did not dare to in her own house! . . . Some man whose friendship was a dangerous thing!

"And she's not going to use my house to carry on her private love affair!" Lovejoy said to herself fiercely. "I'll tell her so, too, as soon as she hangs up!"

Ah, but would that be a wise thing to do?

"After all, it's none of my business if she has love affairs with a dozen men besides her husband," Lovejoy slowly made up her mind. "And perhaps there isn't much to this affair, anyway."

But it seemed that there was. For Aline was making a date with the man at the other end of the wire.

"This afternoon?" she was saying. "Yes, I think I can, Jack. . . . Same time? Same place?—Now do drive carefully. It's wet and the roads are skiddy. Good-by."

Looking at her it was hard for her to believe that she was the kind of a woman who would carry on a love affair behind her husband's back.

"Thanks so much for letting me use your telephone," she said. "My dear, I do wish you'd go down town with me today, and have lunch and shop. You're really just throwing away your youth and your good looks, drudging here day after day. 'All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl,' you know. There's your laundress at the door."

"Laundress!" exclaimed Lovejoy. "That's my Aunt Em!"

She turned quickly, as Aunt Em pushed open the back door and stepped into the kitchen.

It was Thursday, and every Thursday Aunt Em came to the little house to help Lovejoy with the mid-week wash for the baby.

This morning she had on a raincoat that she had been wearing for years and years. On her head she wore what she called her "rainy day hat," and it certainly looked as if it had weathered the flood itself! It was black, and it was shaped like a pop-over.

"Aunt Em," she said, kissing her bright pink cheek, "Mrs. Alderson thought you were my wash-woman!"

"God be above us all!" cried Aunt Em, "do I look as bad as all that?"

She took off the sodden black hat, held it in her two hands and glared at it.

"It's that hat," she said, nodding her head. "James has wanted me to throw it away for years. I guess it's time I did."

And with a single sweep of her arm she opened the back door and tossed it into the rain.

"There now," she said, looking at the two startled faces before her, as she turned back into the kitchen, "I shall never be taken for a wash-woman again!" She was furiously angry. She unbuttoned her rain-coat and took it off with a jerk.

For a moment Lovejoy was afraid that she was going to throw that out after the hat, but she simply shook it and hung it up on the hooks behind the door of the tiny pantry.

Her rosy face was grim.

"I'll stay with the baby today, Lovejoy," she said, rolling up her sleeves and putting on an apron she had brought with her, "and you go down town and pick me out some kind of a hat. Something stylish but plain, that I can wear out in the wet weather."

"Oh, that will be fine!" Aline Alderson broke in. "I've just been trying to get her to go down town for lunch with me . . . I've been telling her that she'll grow old before her time if she stays at home all the time, the way she's been doing."

"Home's not a bad place," Aunt Em said shortly.

She knew, too, that Aunt Em would never like her again. Aunt Em was a good Indian. She never forgot nor forgave anything.

"Open the back door and let some of that carnation smell out before my head starts to ache," she said sharply when Lovejoy's neighbor had gone to get dressed for . . . n. "I do declare, I don't believe a woman who uses that much perfume can be decent!"

At one o'clock Lovejoy sat with Aline in the big luxurious diningroom of the Seminole Hotel, having lunch with her. Outside the winter rain beat on the great arched windows. Inside, the orchestra played "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," softly and disturbingly. Richly dressed women passed by in their furs and tailor-mades. The smell of food and coffee mingled with the fragrance of Aline's perfume and the sweetness of the two fresh white gardenias that she had bought for Lovejoy to wear on her coat.

"They look like you. They match your white skin and your red hair," she had said when she bought them at the flower shop just off the lobby. "You ought never to wear anything but white or black. Do you know it?"

Lovejoy didn't know it.

Her eyes went over the gold mesh bag and the thick white suede gloves that lay beside Aline's plate. Oh, to have things like hers! Not in six or seven years, but now, now, now, while she was young and pretty.

After lunch they went to a millinery shop—a little cheap one—where Aline helped Lovejoy pick out a new black hat for Aunt Em.

Then they went to another hat shop, where Lovejoy helped Aline pick out a hat for herself. A tiny black velvet one lined with white corded silk. An entrancing hat.

"Now we'll go and see a picture," said Aline. "There's a good 'talkie' over here at the Magnifica."

But as soon as they were settled in the seats in the big moving picture theater, she got up.

"I'm going to leave you here for a little while," she whispered, glancing at her wrist watch in the dim light. "I'll be back in an hour or so. I have some business to attend to. Now don't go, will you?"

She had bought a box of glazed nuts and fruit, and she laid it in Lovejoy's lap. "Please do eat all of this," she said. "I shouldn't touch it. I'm getting fat I am afraid."

Then she went.

Lovejoy never knew what made her turn her head and watch Aline start up the aisle, but she did. And to her amazement, Aline did not leave the theater. Instead she slipped into a seat in the back row.

"So this is 'the usual place' where she meets her man!" Lovejoy said to herself. "And this is the 'usual' time!"

* * *

At half past five she was still sitting there alone.

She had seen the entire show, and still Aline had not come.

At ten minutes to six she turned her head. There were only a few people in the big theater, and it was easy to see that Aline had left her back row seat.

"What will I do?" Lovejoy asked herself in desperation. It was high time she was getting back home. Aunt Em would want to be leaving to go to her own home and get supper for Uncle James, and Tom always wanted his evening meal at half past six.

At half past six Lovejoy got up and started out of the theater.

John

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

New York, Jan. 18.—

Songs for a New Year

LIVE a life of spotless virtue,
Never do a thing to hurt you,

Spend your sheckles while you've got 'em,
Paint yourself as black as soot,

Life is simple, life is sweet;
Orderly the plan, and neat:

Vice is punished by the Lord,
Virtue reaps its own reward.

So it's been since Time began
And so, my lad, Is Your Old Man!

—Morton Freund.

THE RETORT OOP!

AT a typical Broadway dinner after midnight in the rear of Gerson's new place on Forty-seventh street, the local Broadway writers proved very unfunny, not one of us arousing a titter, chuckle or laugh. It remained for the roastmaster, Harry Reichenbach to keep up an incessant barrage of laugh-provokers, however, and when the proceedings were drawing to a close, he called upon Ken Murray, a head-liner, to make a talk. Mr. Murray's face got red and he chirped:

"I don't know what to say, frankly, except this, Mr. Reichenbach. You were very comical all night and when I stop acting I'd like to be your booking agent."

"That's very sweet of you to say so," flipped back Harry, "and when you start acting I'd like to be yours!"

CONSOLATION

One of the Broadway lads was groaning because he was being knocked by a lot of idlers. "Dismiss it from your mind," he was counselled, "always remember that nobody ever throws sticks at a bad apple tree."

MERCILESS TRUTH

SHORT STORY

A WELL KNOWN Man About Town, whose passion is to be seen with so-called celebrities, invited a chap to his elegant apartment last night. After showing off his nice place he proudly pointed to the piano upon which rested fifteen autographed photos of actors.

"But," said the unimpressed visitor, "haven't you any FRIENDS?"

YEH, YEH

"Everything the New York colyumist does," says an editorial writer, "becomes his copy. He meets a girl on the street and quotes what he says to her, and, if she is bright, what she says to him. The capital for his colyum is the order of every waking minute of his day, as well as what he dreamed the night before—if it was fit to print."

When pressed for a statement, Mr. Winchell groaned: "Things are getting tougher. The British magazines are so dull you can't steal from them any more."

FACT!

The newest of the dirty tricks now being employed by those Who Would Get Even with People, is to send their enemies parrots.

GEORGE JEAN NATHANISMS

I HAVE finally figured out why it is that the character of an orphan is one of the public's dramatic favorites. An orphan, obviously, has no parents. This reduces the number of rotten actors in the average cast by two . . . A program is a subtle device employed by theatrical producers to persuade an audience to believe that the play it is about to see is going to be acted . . . Shakespeare's play fall into two distinct groups: those written by Shakespeare and those acted by Walter Hampden . . . Vaudeville is a form of entertainment in which a performer, when he doesn't know what else to do, turns a somersault . . . The greater the critic, the more he is criticised. Ten Thousand people have found fault with Shaw for one who found fault with Brander Mathews.

NO WONDER

Bert Lahr, who will be seen in "Flying High," tells of the movie extra in Hollywood who had "the audacity to park her car in a space usually utilized by a well-known director. The director was so infuriated he waited for her and bawled her out plenty. When she got home she sent him this apology: "I'm terribly sorry to have inconvenienced you by parking my car in your space, but I'm not altogether at fault. I happened to see a pre-view of the picture you directed, and didn't think you were with the company any more.

QUITESO, QUITESO

TO all actors who pretend to be indifferent to dramatic criticism George Bernard Shaw wrote that the player who desires enduring fame must seek it at the hands of the critic and not of the casual playgoer. According to Shaw, the world beheves Edmund Kean to have been a much greater actor than Junius Brutus Booth solely because Hazlitt thought so. "And," he thunders, "some day they will reprint my articles, and then what will all your scrap books and cheap successes avail you, O, Lovely Leading Ladies and well-tailored managers? The twentieth century, if it concerns itself with either of us, will see you as I see you. Therefore, study my tastes, flatter me, bribe me and see that your acting managers are conscious of my existence and impressed with my importance!"

HAW!

"SEVERAL months ago," reports the New York Press, "one of the local boys spawned a novel purporting to touch on Broadway, its personalities, haunts, amoeba, bacilli and kibitzers. An energetic effort was made to season it with shocking incident, but the great book-loving public permitted itself a wide yawn and stuck to the works of Vina Delmar. Even the reviewers blacklisted it and the author and publishers grew heart-sore and full of alibis, one of which was that Walter Winchell maliciously shut off the sales and any favorable comment by threatening the book critics that he would throttle them by filling their beds with crumbs."

You see? BOO!

Paper Plant Swept By $400,000 Fire

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 18—(AP.)—The new storage plant of the Consolidated Paper Company here was swept by fire last night, with destruction of 12,000 tons of baled waste paper and of the plant equipment. The loss was estimated by company officials to exceed $400,000.

The building was completed and placed in service three months ago.

Secretaries Elect Snell and Flood

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18—(AP.)—Arthur V. Snell, secretary of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, yesterday was elected president of the Pennsylvania Commercial Secretaries' Association. Wesley B. Foss, of the Phillipsburg Chamber of Commerce, was named vice president; and Patrick Flood, East Liberty, Pittsburgh, was made secretary-treasurer. Frank Mantz, of Hazleton, was named an executive committeeman.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

HINT ON ETIQUETTE OF MAKING A BILLION

(The Life of John D. Rockefeller by John K. Winkler.)

One day, in a Cleveland street car, a lady whom he knew sat beside him. Rockefeller handed the coductor a quarter. The latter returned fifteen cents change. "You have made a mistake, my friend," insisted Rockefeller. "Aren't you paying two fares?" asked the conductor. "No," returned Rockefeller shortly. "Let this be a lesson to you, young man. Never take anything for granted." Flushing painfully, the lady fished out a nickel and paid her own fare.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
Its Climate Is Equable and Delightful

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

We Should Encourage Railroads to Operate Own Barge Lines

President Hoover once stated that the greatest waste in this country was our failure to use our water resources.

No river, he said, should be allowed to run down to the sea without having performed the maximum service of irrigation, power supply and TRANSPORTATION.

River transportation in the United States lags because it lacks the co-operation of the railroads. Until that co-operation is secured, we shall continue to give scant return for the scores of millions we spend on improving inland waterways.

Big, economical river steamers and barges cannot be filled with port-to-port traffic, any more than ocean steamers. The railroads must feed and distribute for them.

New York and Hamburg contribute little of the freight that moves between those ports. Each port is a traffic funnel through which railroad trains pour their contents into ship holds. So with river traffic in Germany. Railroads pour traffic into barges on Elbe and Rhine to be transported cheaply by water to Hamburg or Rotterdam for export. That, incidentally, is an important reason for the growth of Germany's export trade.

The Mississippi system renders no such service to us. It does not drain traffic from the Mississippi Valley at cheap river rates to New Orleans for export. The reason is that our private-owned railroads will not "short-haul" themselves and give the "long haul" (and most of the revenue) to a competing water carrier. The courts have upheld the railroads in resisting this co-operation.

It might be wise to make it worth their while to co-operate. Why not allow and encourage the railroads to own barge lines of their own? Then it would be to their advantage to dump all suitable freight at the earliest moment into the cheaper water carrier.

Then it would be the business of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make sure that the public got the advantage of the cheaper transportation thus provided. By law, already the commission has control of rail-and-water rates and also all-water rates of rail-owned water lines. It would certainly not give us less than we now have, in effective river transportation. It might give us a great deal more.

The government-owned barge lines on the Mississippi are admittedly being run only until a suitable purchaser can be found. If they are to be sold, why not sell them to a group of railroads or to an individual rail carrier. President Markham, of the Illinois Central, a few years ago said this was the way to get out of the Mississippi system the service it could render. Why not give President Markham's idea a trial?

It is too bad the Interstate Commerce Commission did not cover the subject in its outline of an American transportation system—its suggested group of railroad consolidations.

Go to Automobile Show Prepared to Buy Car

The annual exposition of automobiles conducted by the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association in Motor Square Garden opens at 1 o'clock this afternoon and will continue until closing time next Saturday.

The automobile show, which always arouses much interest and attracts large crowds of persons curious about the latest developments in automotive lines, is especially significant this year not only because of development, but because of unexpectedly large purchaser interest.

What is there to see that has not been seen in previous shows? For one thing, front-wheel drive, showing for the first time in the Motor Square event. Other things will be the evidence of increased trend toward straight-eight motor building, use of four-speed (silent in second gear) transmission and down-draught carburetion. And, of course, there will be the decorative effects and utility features of bodies which always arouse comment.

It is assumed that everybody will attend the show. It will be well worthy of attendance. Go with the intention of buying a car. Then you will have an object aside from mere curiosity. Almost everybody can afford to have a car. In fact, few can afford not to have one. Pleasure and health of your family and self are prime reasons why a car is needed.

Go to the show. Look over the models. Make a choice suited to your income. You will be surprised to see what an amazingly good car will come within reach of your purse. There is nothing on the market that has so consistently improved while making yearly price reductions as the automobile.

Get a car.

Don't be afraid of what the future holds. Everybody competent to feel the public pulse says we are going to have a very healthy year from the prosperity standpoint. Besides the future may hold something that would make you sorry you did not, when you had the chance, provide the comfort and pleasure and efficiency your family needs and has yearned for, and which a car provides.

Go to the show.

Get a car.

Coming of Age

Poetry Being Revalued.

Publishers report a steadily increasing interest in modern American poetry. This is important, because of the contention that the present period of economic progress—the last two decades—is marked by the vital expression in every department of literature but poetry.

Poetry is continually being revalued—and during 1929 an awakened interest in the genius of Emily Dickinson (1830-1886) brought forth a printing of almost 200 of her hitherto unpublished poems.

The trouble is that we have not yet learned to recognize a contemporary poet when one comes along.

Making Bubbles

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

OFFICIAL language of London marine gossip will be English. At least we will be able to understand the insults.

"Bugs" Baer

Our Glee Club of 92 diplomats is practicing daily and Charley Pipe Dawes has developed a tenor that no Kentucky mule could top.

Our object in exporting a chirping A. E. F. of 92 plenipotentiaries is a subtle stroke of American intrigue. We may be out-thought, out-talked and outvoted but we will not be outyelled.

English is the best language for either stopping or starting fights. The trouble with the 16 collapsed conferences was the mixture of agreements. When all in favor were to vote aye, the result was ya, ja, out, si, si, senor, oog, glub and the rest of that deepdish chop suey.

This naval disarmament conference may turn out to be the preamble to nothing. If England really wants to retain her naval supremacy she requires no conferences.

The sinking of an American boat has always been the green light that started the big parade. We remembered the Maine and the Lusitania. Shall the time ever arrive when a dignified but boatless admiral will have to go to sea in the snug embrace of a pair of waterwings?

They may talk it over in London, but the complexion of peace will always be a battleship gray.

The next war without boats will be just as fierce as any other war. You can't change a three-alarm fire by tooting on a tin whistle instead of beating on a gong.

Talking doesn't change the betting. All it does is to drown the noise of riveting.

A navyless nation is in the same bottle with a kickless frog. If they put this jigger over we are adding another treaty to our paper profits and are getting ready to fly the Stars and Stripes from a toothpick.

Any country can sink one of our merchant marine gondolas and the best the War Department can do is to go into executive session, learn a new dance step and proclaim some rainy Tuesday a national holiday.

Fun's fun. But not when it gets serious. If this naval conference goes through and the Navy becomes a withered pansy in a sunken garden, then the U. S. has swindled the school children who donated their pennies to save Old Ironsides. We thought that was patriotism but it now seems that it's a racket.

The Magnet

JUST like the potent wizardry
In the magnetic steel
There is a human quality
Which makes its sure appeal.

We see the metal shavings fly
When comes the magnet's call.
Some kinship binds them all.

And so this force abiding there,
Deep in the human soul,
All virtues can control.

In hours of storm that each life knows
Its strength can never fail;
This power, strangely, mightier grows
Through tempest and through gale.

God-given, from above,
This force that never fails or sleeps,
The master-magnet, Love!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

HERE'S another story from the north woods. The boys that get to go up there and shoot deer and moose always tell some tall tales about their adventures, and I reckon sometimes they tell a true one, but I ain't heard that one yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Messer were driving along in their car, up in New Brunswick, where there was a winding road and a lot of forest on both sides of it. Messer thought he seen a deer loping through the brush, out towards the road, at a curve, and he took a shot. He heard a yell from around the bend, and directly an automobile come around, and the man in it was mad.

"See here," he says, "you want to be a lot more careful about shooting rifles at my wife! You just about potted her that time! My word, do you think you can take a shot at my wife whenever you want to?"

"Say, mister, I didn't mean to," says Messer. "I'm awful sorry. I nearly hit your wife. By the way, this here is my wife, Mrs. Messer. Don't you want to take a shot at her from where you set, and kinda even things up?"

FROM HORNS TO HALO

By Herbert Kaufman

AT THE age of 90, John D. Rockefeller has started out on a speech-making tour of the universe. Following the example of various potentates, statesmen and smaller fry, he has consented to have his vocal portrait painted and exhibited throughout the world.

Time was when public opinion would accept no likeness of Mr. Rockefeller except with HORNS and HOOF. Caricature and anathema once dipped their brushes and words in slime and vitriol and depicted him as the very SYMBOL of ruthless avarice and pitiless power.

FOR more than half his life he hung upon the crucifix of NATIONAL condemnation, harried by government inquisitors, denounced as a corrupter of legislature and judiciary, and commonly stigmatized as an economic ogre with an insatiate appetite for the destruction of competition.

A later generation knows him only as the mightiest of all humanity's benefactors—as grand marshal in a parade of such philanthropies as history never thought to witness.

Seemingly possessed of the coldest, the most aloof and UNSYMPATHETIC of temperaments, he has gradually revealed an understanding of basic human needs, for which many a LESSER servant of good has been CANONIZED.

Mr. Rockefeller is not CHARITABLE; he is not an ALMS-GIVER. He has donated his wealth to the ultimate correction, not the superficial ALLEVIATION, of want and suffering.

RATHER than HOSPITALS, he has created institutions to decrease the NECESSITY for hospitals. His millions are not pouring into pill boxes and medicine bottles. They are removing, INSTEAD, the CAUSES of disease—ridding the earth of the vileness, the ignorance and the habits of living on which plagues and epidemics PROSPER.

He has drenched torches with Standard Oil earnings to light the way for research and education. And those torches are blazing in the dimmest wilderness—searching for the foulness that everywhere threatens health and stamina.

St. George, who attained imperishable celebrity through ONE dragon scrap, was a PIKING hunter by contrast. Rockefeller's golden lance is leveled at ALL the monstrous forces with which death has immemorially ravaged population.

THE vast sums he has set aside for superannuated ministers and college professors are not humiliating doles, but earnests of his respect for careers unselfishly devoted to general advancement.

WITHOUT these pensions, the most vitally needed instructors in American universities would be compelled to relinquish their posts and turn their talents to such remunerative tasks as would insure solvency in old age.

Flood, famine and catastrophy have dipped into his pockets for totals of millions. The Red Cross carries a pass-key to his purse, and the social reforms he has financed, ALONE could distinguish him as a humanitarian.

Be sure to take your children to the motion picture theater to meet John D. Rockefeller, to whom they owe more than to any DOZEN medieval saints.

Then bring them home and tell the story of the man, on whose head yesterday planted HORNS and tomorrow will place a HALO.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Feminine policy has a mysterious method; it is better to leave it to them.—Montaigne.

If thou hast never been a fool, be sure thou wilt never be a wise man.—Thackeray.

Talking and eloquence are not the same; to speak, and to speak well, are two things.—Johnson.

Text for Today For there is no difference: For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus.—Romans iii:22-24.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THERE is a rhythm in the life of an intestinal roundworm as marked as our own rhythm of day and night.

But there is another side to the life of a parasite. Before it can enjoy this Elysium it has to get there, and it is no easy thing for a worm as simply made as a roundworm to invade a mammalian intestine.

H. G. Wells

Consequently we find that eggs are produced in enormous numbers—a single Ascaris, it has been reckoned, can produce 15,000 eggs a day—and only very few among these thousands reach their earthly paradise.

In some species, such as the comparatively harmless Ascaris lumbricoides of the human bowel, the eggs pass out with the faeces, and a few lucky ones are swallowed by a new host—floating, for example, in his drinking water—and thus win through.

It is simply a matter of hit and miss, and the prolific mother makes so many shots that they cannot all miss.

In the dreaded Trichinella spiralis, for example—a worm only a few millimetres long—the adult lives and multiplies in the intestine of a man, a pig, a rat, or another suitable mammal.

The fertilized female burrows into one of the villi and there brings forth living young—sometimes many thousands—which escape into the lymphatic vessels of the host.

Thus, reaching the circulation, they are carried all over the body until they settle down in the voluntary muscles. They burrow into the muscles, shut themselves up in little, hard cases and wait. Nothing more happens to them until the host dies; but if after his death his flesh is eaten by another mammal—a man by a rat, or a pig by a man—they revive and flourish in the bowels of the latter.

An infected animal may have tens of millions of these parasites patiently waiting in his muscles for his death, and hurrying it up by producing the inflammations or other symptoms of "trichiniasis."

It has been calculated that one source of infected or "measly" pork contains 85,000 of them—if the pork was not properly cooked its consumption would involve the liberation of all these parasites in the bowel of the eater, and if half of these were females, producing on the average of a thousand embryos each, the result would be a migration of forty million young worms into his muscles.

Again in the guinea-worm, Filaria mendinesis—a worm from one to six feet long—the adults live in the connective tissue of man just under the skin.

The young escape into the outer world through abscesses caused by the presence of the parasite, and some of them have the good fortune to get into a stream or a pond.

Here they make their way into the bodies of the water fleas, Cyclops, where they wait until the water is drunk by a man careless enough not to filter it first. Thus they reach the human bowel, and thence, presumably by the circulation, they travel to the connective tissue of the skin.

In a case of this kind, where the adults live inside a creature of one species, but the young, in order to get there regularly, enter the bodies of some quite different animal, the latter is called an intermediate host.

These creatures are not all parasite. A huge number of them live harmlessly in salt or fresh water or in soil or the tissues of rotting plants.

Some species are free when they are young, but become parasitic when they mature—such as Strongylus and Dochmius, which infect man, and Tylenchus scandens, which invades the tissues of cereals.

In some, on the other hand, the young are parasitic while the adults are free-living; an example of this is afforded by Sphaerulia bombi whose young grow in the tissues of bees and wasps.

Sec. 6. Flatworms.

THE Platyhelminthes or flatworms are for the most part parasitic. Their organization is curious, and we may introduce ourselves to it by examining a particular member of the group.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Uptown New York frequently registers the disturbances of Wall Street with the accuracy of a seismograph. Long before extras were being bowled about the panic in late October, hospital nurses say many patients northward were touched by depression—a sort of mental contagion.

During the anguishing hours when the entire financial structure seemed tottering, there were thousands of wives at home who had a presentiment of disaster and tried to reach their husbands by telephone. One woman, indeed, rushed to her husband's office, arriving 10 minutes after he had shot himself.

People along the street who knew nothing of the flurry below Fulton say they were suddenly touched by a vague melancholia. In many of the department stores, too, a check up during the dangerous hours revealed that many shoppers had suddenly disappeared to go home.

Similarly, a day of large winnings is felt uptown by some peculiar thought transference. Head waiters in expensive "from caviar to contreau" places who are not in touch with Wall Street have a hunch to prepare for a big dinner crowd and it turns out.

Thus does Wall Street become an uncanny barometer of emotions. A bad day is quickly reflected in the theaters and restaurants. Even subway passengers are able to tell by the expressions of home-going workers in the financial houses the trend of the day in the market.

Calloused speculators are the most susceptible of all people to the vagaries of superstition and that indefinable quality called "the hunch." They have found the "hunch" is after all as likely to turn out successfully as digested dope of financial pages.

The biggest patronage among fortune tellers, crystal gazers and sundry sooth sayers comes from marginal dabblers in stocks. Many big operators carry charms. In their world of tangled fears, they grasp at every straw.

Drink or drugs are rarely so insidious as stock gambling fever. Many drug addicts have been "off the stuff" for years. The reformed toper is everywhere. But the chronic visitor to the brokerage board room still gets entirely away from the lure of speculation. He may stay out awhile, but now and then comes back for a "flyer." And if he makes a killing he joins the regulars again.

In our town the hardy pitch players would be routed from their game in the hotel office each spring by the annual exhortations of a hat gospeling tent evangelist. He shamed them from the gaming table with his dramatic recital of an old poem—one verse of which ran:

"You lie! I saw you steal that ace!"
A crashing blow across the face
A pistol shot and death's disgrace
Were in that pack of cards!

For a week or so the pitch players would not be seen in their nightly game following the evangelist's visit. But one by one, just like Wall Street players after a panic, they would drift back and the game would run full tilt, well, anyway 10 cents a corner, until the evangelist came again.

The last man in the New York telephone book is a Mr. Zzyzz. He had never seen his name in a newspaper before until the list came out, and suddenly he became the topic of a thousand stories all over the country. I have known about Mr. Zzyzz for years. They are always paging him when I pass a saw mill.

Dinty Moore's cafe has suddenly become one of the "celebrity" luncheon places, along with the Algonquin and Bardi's. Among those I saw lunching there recently were: Anita Loos, John Gilbert, Gilbert Miller, Edgar Selwyn, Maj. Bowes, Arthur Hornblow, Marjorie Oelrichs and Joe Schenck.

My wife had a chuckle today. A neighbor lady back home in a letter inquired: "Is your husband working some place or just writing?"
